Carmel to permit July 4th fireworks

AFTER a respite of one year, the Carmel City Council has voted to allow "safe and sane" fireworks on Carmel Beach during the Fourth of July holiday. The holiday weekend has drawn huge crowds in recent years, as evidenced by the 1981 celebration (above), and in 1982 a melee broke out between police, firemen and an unruly crowd on the beach. For complete coverage, see page 5.

Teachers take recall into schools

By MICHAEL GARDNER

TEACHERS HAVE become increasingly involved in the Carmel Unified School District recall campaign — so much so that they have brought the dispute into the schools themselves.

The 65-member Association of Carmel teachers has endorsed three candidates it wants to see elected when voters go to the polls July 23 to determine whether trustees James Yates, Robert Fenton and Susan Bromfield should be recalled.

Teachers also have collected signatures on recall petitions and have made financial contributions to the replacement candidates.

But teachers have had their share of controversy and pranks during the campaign.

Carmel River School teachers placed a display of recall-related information on their bulletin board that included a sketched axe in Yates' head and a drawn dagger in Bromfield's face.

Students have been seen in the teachers' lounge on various occasions, but it has not been proven that a student ever saw the bulletin board and its graffiti.

An earlier incident involved a pro-recall banner hung in the River School lounge that was clearly visible to students coming off the bus or playing in the front yard.

The bulletin board and banner were removed after complaints from parents.

River School Principal Rosemary Montgomery also got into the act, albeit more subtly.

Montgomery included in her weekly memos to staff — written on district paper — a satire on the search for a new superintendent to replace William Rand, who resigned Oct. 8.

The series, typed by the school secretary, was produced during the time of superintendent interviews, which culminated in the hiring of Robert Infelise.

As the District Churns chronicles the escapades of the fictitious Tondelayo Rifkin, the "director of lotteries and federal grants" and how she manages to wrangle an interview through an illicit love affair with a classified staff member on the screening committee.

Montgomery responded that the satire was written by her in the evenings. She said it has nothing to do with the political controversy and was "just for fun. We need some humor in our lives."

Teachers early in the recall campaign also produced a newsletter that poked fun at Fenton, Yates and Bromfield through fictional interviews between trustees and a local reporter.

Names were changed, but it was apparent who the trustees were.

It has never been learned who produced the newsletter. However, after accusations of

Teacher recall conduct lacks professionalism

THERE ARE no clear rules, or even guidelines, on what constitutes professionalism in the teaching trade. But certainly one of those attributes essential to a professional teacher is detachment from self-interest, at least insofar as actual duties in and around school are concerned.

The promotion of self-interest on the part of teachers has its proper place at the negotiation table and at board of education meetings — not in the schools.

However, teachers in the Carmel Unified School District have breached this unwritten code of professionalism by their recent conduct related to the July 23 recall election involving three trustees.

As reported elsewhere, teachers posted on a bulletin board at Carmel River School infantile graffiti expressing their hostility toward the three trustees targeted for recall. Although displayed in the teachers' lounge, the graffiti are in a place where students could see them.

In another incident, a pro-recall banner was unfurled in the River School lounge so that it was visible to students arriving by bus or playing in the front. Both graffiti and banner were removed after protests by parents.

Other unprofessional escapades involving school personnel include a satirical writing on the recent hiring of a new superintendent, as part of River School Principal Rosemary Montgomery's weekly staff memo — typed by the school secretary on school materials during school hours.

Teachers also have exercised their democratic right to circulate recall petitions, contribute money to recall candidates, and to support a political cause. This is fine, provided politics is kept out of the schools and the classroom.

In another dubious exercise of professional judgment, the Association of Carmel Teachers recently had a so-called candidates' night at Carmel Middle School to which only the recall candidates supported by teachers were invited.

This type of forum is nothing if not undemocratic, and sets a poor example for students of how the free exchange of ideas and opinions should operate in a democracy. It also tends to sanction by example a partiality which runs counter to the spirit of free inquiry.

There can be no real argument with teachers' right to be involved politically in support of candidates and issues of their choosing. There can be, and is, a real concern about how professional and unbiased teachers have been with respect to this recall campaign.

Teachers have stated that their motive for siding with the recall is their displeasure with the resignation of former Supt. William Rand, but in actuality teachers have made more protest, more often about their long-delayed raises than about the Rand incident.

Could it be that teachers are just angry with the three trustees for not giving them a raise sooner, and are using the recall as a way to get revenge?

cy funding for any coastal related projects. This seems to come as a result of the Coastal Conservancy's pique because two projects it supported — the "Trolley" in Monterey and the El Sur Ranch development in Big Sur — failed due to the lack of local public and government support.

Since the rejection of those projects, the Coastal Conservancy, which is a state agency, has rescinded a $2 million grant previously given to Monterey County and has delayed its decision about whether to make a grant to the Big Sur Land Trust.

The grant is essential to help the Land Trust purchase 80 acres in Big Sur. If the Coastal Conservancy delays past June, the deal will fall through and its decision will be moot. The Coastal Conservancy has created the delay because it says it doesn't see evidence of enough public support for the purchase.

The property, which includes the steepest coastal slope in the continental United States, contains a genetically singular stand of coastal redwoods and uniquely interdependent ecological micro-communities. It is also adjacent to the Camaldolese Hermitage, a Roman Catholic monastic community of the Benedictine Order.

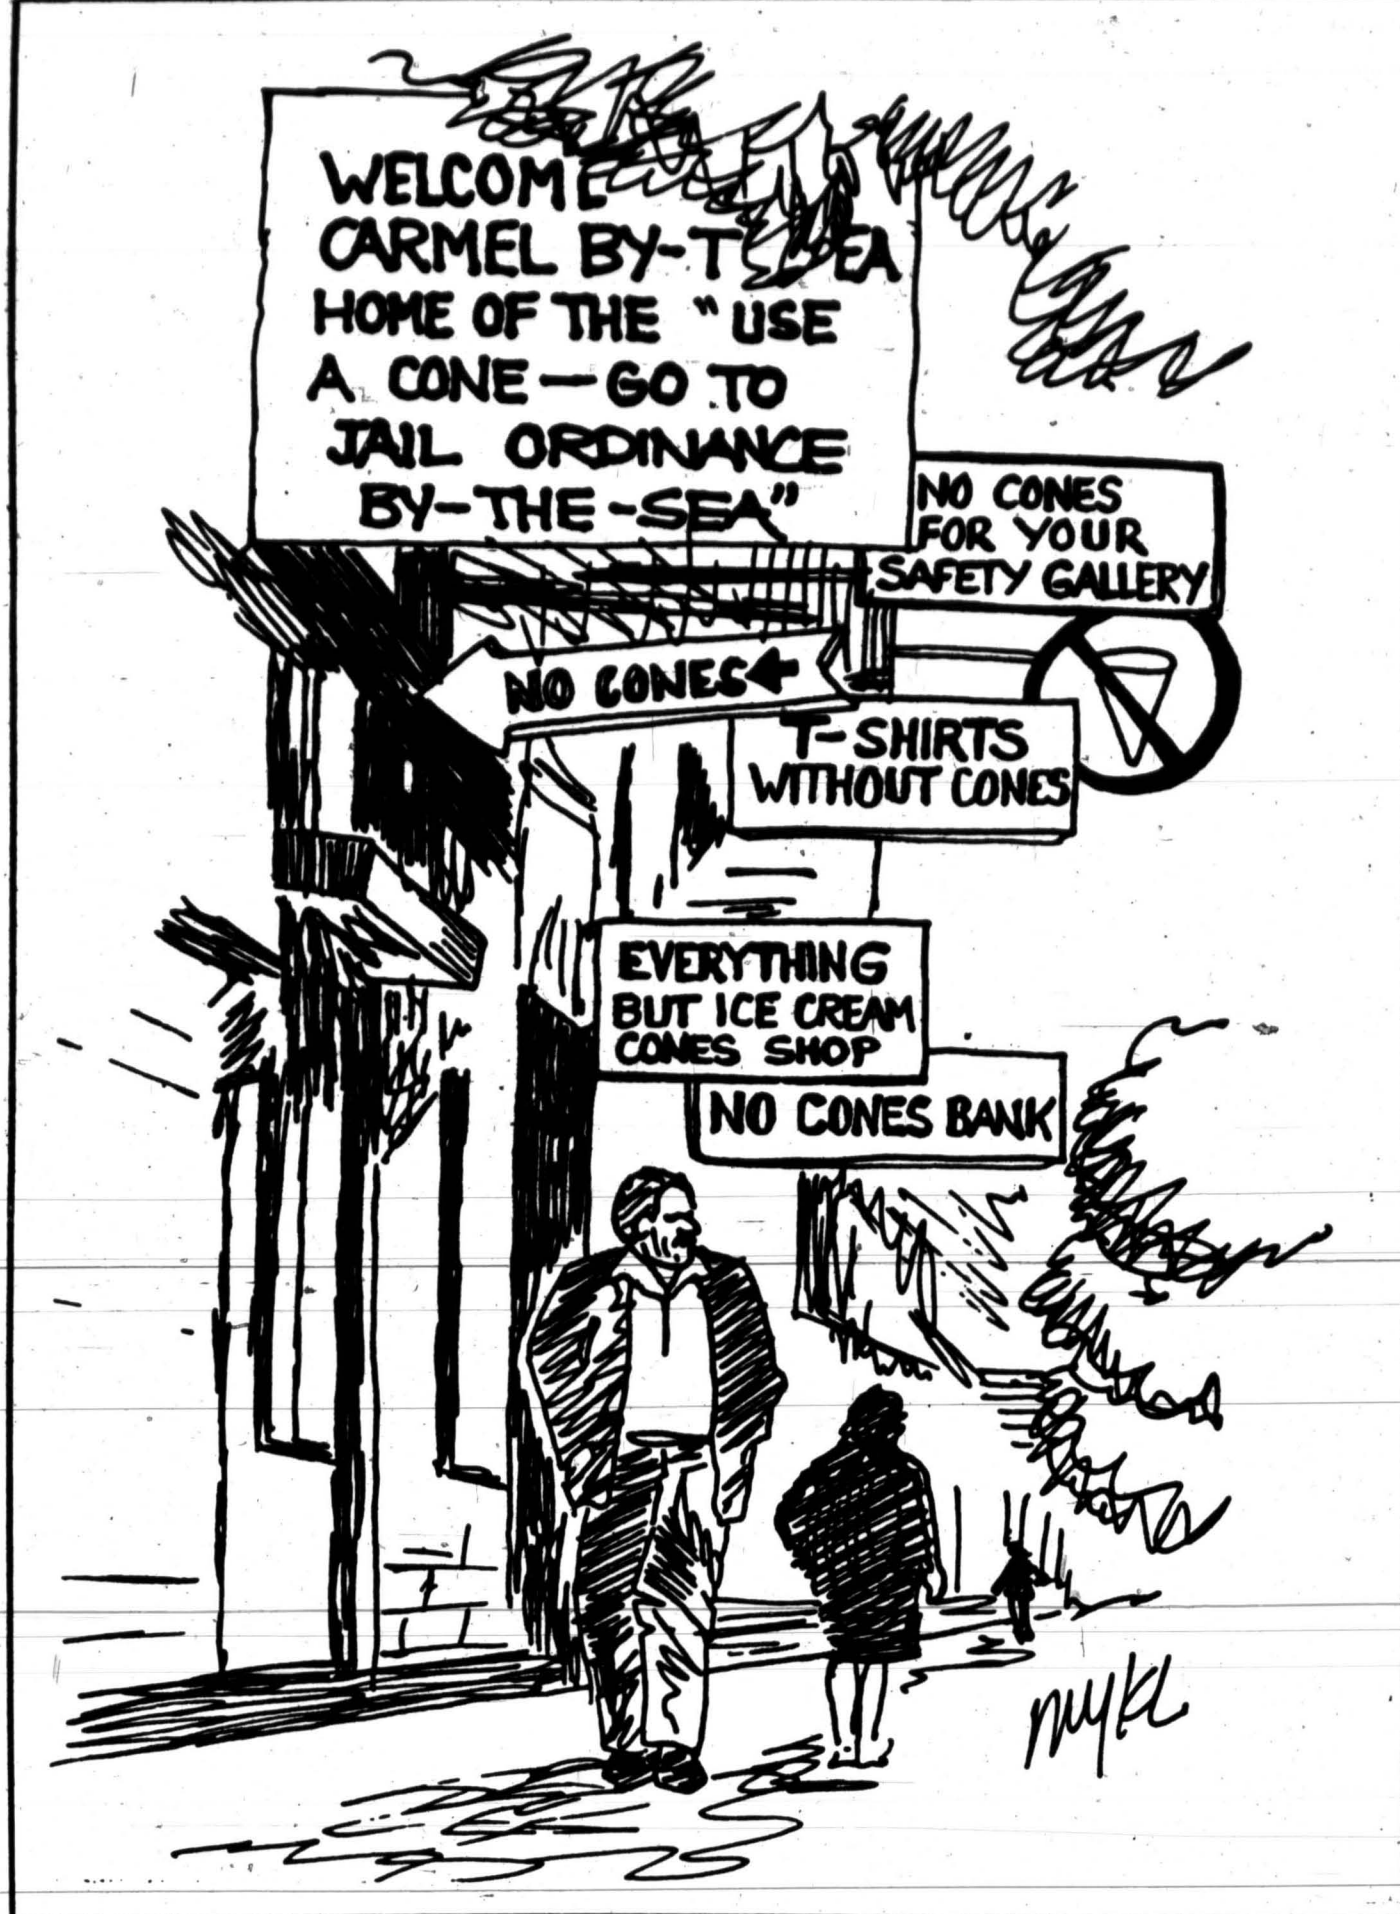

The owner of the 80 acres, the Scarborough Lumber Co., will make a bargain sale to the Big Sur Land Trust but the Land Trust needs the Coastal Conservancy funding before the end of June. If the sale does not go through, the owner intends to log this extremely important and fragile property, which will ruin it and disturb the monks (the lumber company claims to have a right of way through the middle of the community's various buildings).

That the Coastal Conservancy is merely using the question of public support as an excuse to delay approving the grant, perhaps fatally, is evident since the Big Sur Land Trust has raised $150,000 from an adjacent landowner (not the monks) and another $24,000 in individual contributions from local people who support the purchase of the property. The money that the Coastal Conservancy has so far denied us would have come from Assemblyman Sam Farr's State Park Bond Fund. Surely he intended the residents of Monterey County to receive a fair share of that funding. Senator Henry Mello is one of the people who has the responsibility for overseeing the Coastal Conservancy and it seems unlikely that he would support his constituents being short-changed because the Coastal Conservancy has apparently decided to use state funds to play politics and vent its pique.

I believe we should let both Senator Mello and Assemblyman Farr, as well as our other representatives in Sacramento, know that Monterey County and its residents don't like being discriminated against by the Coastal Conservancy and urge them to insist that we receive equal consideration with the other coastal areas of the state, when our private and public organizations turn to the Coastal Conservancy for support.

Orchestra strike coverage

Dear Editor:

I read with interest Robert Miskimon's news story this week reporting on the continuing "battle" between the symphony board and orchestra.

The issues are not yet clear enough for me to take a solid stand — maybe I don't like to jump to conclusions without sufficient information.

What is very clear to me, however, from reading Mr. Miskimon's article is that this is not unbiased reporting, which I feel is the ethical responsibility of a reporter.

Specifically:

5 • Mr. Miskimon's first "words" regarding the symphony dispute were written several weeks ago in a Pine Cone/Outlook editorial, in which he stated his opinion, in favor of the orchestra's position.

• Mr. Miskimon is now "reporting" on the continuing "saga" in a manner which smells of one-sidedness. I wonder why?

• In this week's contribution, Mr. Miskimon uses the majority of his story as an opportunity for the opposition to rebut a paid-for message printed in the same issue by the Friends of the Monterey County Symphony. Why? Will he allow the symphony board to respond next week? I would think not!

I would like to see a fair and equitable solution to this unfortunate dispute between the Monterey County Symphony board and the orchestra members. More importantly, I would like to see fair and equitable and ethical reporting by the Pine Cone/Outlook so that the citizens know the whole story.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The letter writer is misinformed. The first coverage in the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook of the symphony strike was in the April 25 edition, which included an extensive news story on page 1, plus an editorial which did express an opinion on the issue. The statements included in the paid advertisement taken out by the "Friends of the Monterey County Symphony" were extracted from a letter dated May 17 addressed to members of the orchestra and signed by William Doolittle, symphony board president. The statements made in rebuttal to Doolittle's letter were extracted from another letter to orchestra members signed by symphony musician Jack Bayes. The fact that one side of the controversy chose to present its views in a paid advertisement had no bearing on the need to conform to journalistic standards of fairness in presenting both sides.)

Final Piccadilly pricetag: $500,000

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CONTROVERSY IS not unfamiliar to Piccadilly Park and if its supporters have their way, the latest storm will pass as the plants begin to grow and the final touches are completed.

Five years, 2,002 city man hours, and $500,000 after it was purchased, the 4,000 sq. ft. park on Dolores Street opened quietly without the usual ribbon-cutting and fanfare that accompany the completion of the majority of major projects in the city.

There were no speeches from the mayor, no guided tours by the garden club and no commemorative plaque laid at the entrance.

Instead, Piccadilly Park has come under fire once again — this time for its council-approved design that some residents have likened to a pee-wee golf course.

Even council members have indicated reservations about the preliminary design, but say they are confident that once the plants grow the park will be "something the city can be proud of," in the words of Mayor Charlotte Townsend.

And at the council session Tuesday afternoon, Director of Administrative Services Gregory D'Ambrosio issued a detailed financial statement which reveals that the city spent $106,311 to build the park.

The price tag does include the labor costs for contractors and city crew to build the park.

The city undertook construction of the park after attempts to solicit outside contractors failed. City crews spent 2,002 hours to develop the park.

According to D'Ambrosio, "anticipated" major expenses include: architectural services, $12,008; contractors' labor costs, $31,008; and materials and supplies, $29,729.

Other major "unanticipated expenditures" include: city labor costs, $28,531; contractors' labor costs, $4,014; and architectural fees, $3,175.

Coupled with the approximately $400,000 purchase price in 1980, the park cost the city about $500,000.

However, on the revenue side, the city did receive some funds that partially offset construction fees.

Those funds included about $24,000 in state parkland grants and contributions from citizens of about $2,200.

In his report, D'Ambrosio listed some of the problems the city encountered as crews began construction.

The biggest unanticipated problem was what to do about the stark white wall on the Toots Lagoon building.

A series of problems with the wall caused several delays. The original design had to be altered because the wall could not support the trestles and plantings that were to obscure it.

TWICE STUCCO applied to the wall by a private contractor fell off.

Finally the city decided just to build pillars and trestles that could stand alone. Vines eventually will grow along the structures to obscure the wall. The wall also was painted green.

That problem alone delayed the project by two months.

City crews also had to fit their regular duties in between work on Piccadilly, which slowed development of the park and also has delayed other city projects.

When the city laid preliminary plans for a contractor to build Piccadilly, the park was to open last spring.

A year behind schedule, the park now is open.

City officials, most people active in the park development, and designer Gordon Andrews stressed the need for patience before citizens criticize Piccadilly or suggest changes.

"I'm delighted it is completed," the mayor said. "I just hope people realize it is in the raw growing stage."

The mayor said residents should give the plants a chance to grow before launching criticisms. She said changes can be made later if there are problems after the plants reach maturity.

"The people wanted to keep this open space," Mayor Townsend said in reference to two advisory ballot measures where citizens supported keeping the land as a park site.

"I think it's going to be an asset. I think it's going to be a place people will be happy with," she said. "People are using it. I'm certainly happy to see that."

D'Ambrosio said he has seen as much as 13 people in the park at one time.

The mayor had nothing but "high kudos" for the city crew. "I think they just did an outstanding job," she said.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold, a longtime park supporter, expressed concerns about the design but steadfastly maintains that the site is worth every dime spent by the city.

"Good heavens, yes it's worth it. It's already been in quite intensive use. I'm delighted that we did it to have open space there rather than 12 shops," she said.

The council bought the old Piccadilly Nursery to prevent owners from constructing a proposed two-story, multi-retail shop complex.

Arnold suggested elimination of the large archway and in its place a "little grapestake fence gate."

She also would like to see changes in the steel cable fence that protects the pond in the rear of the property.

But, like the mayor, Mrs. Arnold suggests that the plants be allowed to grow before any

GORDON ANDREWS, designer of Piccadilly Park, admits that the park now looks like a "pee-wee golf course" but promises that residents will be supportive of the park once the landscaping grows. His statements are echoed by city officials, who say the park will be an asset to the city for years to come. (Michael Gardner photo.)

wholesale changes are considered.

Councilman Robert Stephenson, a longtime opponent of the park, reiterated his concern about the price. However, Stephenson did describe the park as "very nice."

City commits to build bathrooms

RESIDENTS on their way to the post office, workers in retail shops and tourists browsing the stores soon will not have to sneak into restaurants or use portable toilets in the library parking lot when nature calls.

The Carmel City Council Tuesday afternoon made a firm commitment to provide public restrooms downtown.

The council on a 3-1 vote directed staff to prepare concept plans for three proposed locations for restroom facilities that will cost an estimated $65,000.

The three locations are the east and west sides of Devendorf Park, and the Post Office parking lot.

Councilman James Wright dissented, but only because he opposes restrooms in parks. He voiced support for bathrooms in the post office parking lot. Councilman Robert Stephenson was absent.

The council also committed itself to building public restrooms as part of any library expansion or annex project, which will not be decided until later this year.

"There is no question in any of our minds that bathrooms will be part of those plans," Mayor Townsend said.

All council members agreed that bathrooms would be unsuitable at Piccadilly

Park because it is too small and the public works building is too far away from the more populated downtown area.

The swift move on bathrooms came as a result of preliminary reviews of the city questionnaire.

Although public restrooms were not the subject of a question, a majority of residents did include their support for such facilities in their answer to a question about what services are needed in town.

"Devendorf Park would be my first choice," Councilwoman Helen Arnold said. "It is one we can do immediately."

She favors restrooms at the park corner near the bus stop on Mission Street and Sixth Avenue.

Arnold opposes bathrooms at the post office parking lot because of possible traffic congestion problems.

She added that it would be "a shame to destroy that green area" that "provides a respite from the harsh" buildings that surround the parking lot.

Arnold said the blue chemical toilets in the library parking lot are an "embarrassment" to the city.

Wright called parks "unsuitable" for bathrooms. "I'm definitely opposed to locating them in Devendorf Park."

Plans may be ready for council consideration in July or August.

City to bulldoze

EACH YEAR thousands of visitors walk down to the beach from Ocean Avenue bringing with them a little bit of sand from bank to tideline.

And each year like clockwork the city pushes that sand right back up to the beach cliff.

This year the city is expected to bulldoze "thousands and thousands" of tons of sand from the ocean floor back up to the banks at the foot of Ocean Avenue from June 10 to June 14, said City Forester Gary Kelly.

The bulldozing is an annual city program to keep the large Del Mar beach cliff from becoming too eroded. The bank is the most commonly used access to Carmel Beach, Kelly said.

The $6,000 project is contracted to Granite Construction Co.

that will mark the end of the school year Thursday, June 13.

The high school graduation ceremony will begin at 4 p.m. on the football field on campus, Highway 1 and Ocean Avenue.

Carmel Valley High School will graduate 13 seniors during special ceremonies at 5 p.m. Tuesday, June 11 on campus off Schulte Road in Carmel Valley.

One hundred and sixty middle school eighth graders will be graduated during ceremonies at 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 12 in the gym, south side of Carmel Valley Road about one mile east of Highway 1.

Carmel River School will celebrate its annual fifth graders recognition with a special ceremony at 1 p.m. Wednesday, June 12 at the school, northeast corner of Monte Verde Street and 15th Avenue.

Tularcitos School off Ford Road in Carmel Valley will conduct a fifth grade recognition ceremony at 10 a.m. Wednesday, June 12.

Tularcitos also will have a special class party and picnic luncheon at 10 a.m. at the community center swimming pool adjacent to the school.

The public is invited to all of the special year-ending events.

Cultural panel concerned about move of library

By JOE MCGOWAN

IF THE children's room of Harrison Memorial Library is moved to Sunset Center, it won't happen without careful consideration by the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission.

This message was made clear Friday when the commission showed up for a meeting of the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Directors at Sunset Center.

The library board, which plans to use the current children's room for computer and work space, has sent the cultural commission a letter asking what possibilities exist for relocating the children's room to Sunset Center.

"We are concerned that you do continue the children's program," said Cultural Commissioner Louis Heniford. "But we're also concerned with maintaining existing services and using the center for the services for which it was dedicated."

"We're hurting for space already," he said. "The waiting list is booked up for two years."

All the commission members and several spectators seemed primarily concerned with two questions: how much space does the library need, and for how long?

The library board was unprepared to give concrete answers to either question. Librarian Margaret Pelikan said the library wouldn't move the children's facilities unless "better" facilities could be arranged than at the library.

According to library staff representative Stephanie Pearce, "better" means adequate space and "adequate planning on how the space is used."

A citizen interjected that a large amount of planning implies that the library will occupy the space at Sunset Center for a long time.

Library Trustee Jean Grace said such a move could be "permanent."

The library board also is considering the construction or annexation of a building on Lincoln Street, in which case the children's room would be located there.

Grace suggested the children's room be placed in the upstairs reading area of Harrison Memorial Library. "It would show the people in this town how pampered they are.

The John Steinbeck Library in Salinas is a lot larger library, but they don't have anything like a reading room that large."

Heniford thought the children were better off close to the adult library. "If you put the children out in the hinterlands, then they have no contact with the adults, and you have separation of generations."

PEARCE SAID "the ultimate decision (about relocation of the children's library) will come from the city council, but I'm sure in conjunction with both the library board and the cultural committee."

At the same meeting, the library board also ratified three recommendations by its automation subcommittee to:

- Accept the low bid of $47,570 for the computer room construction from Dilbeck and Sons;

- Adopt expenditure for architect and library director to expend not more than 10 percent of the total bid estimate for additional costs without board approval;

- Authorize the board president to sign a contract approved by the city attorney.

The second point caused the most objections. Trustee Bernard Anderson claimed that the provision could be "opening up a can of worms of unforeseen costs."

And Trustee Ronald Kabet said: "It's my experience that the contingency is built into the contract."

Gretchen Flesher, a consultant hired to help plan the construction, explained "we could add a contingency, but in that case we wouldn't have as good policing on it."

The three proposals passed with only one abstention, on the second point by Kabet.

The board also voted in favor of allocating funds to renovate the lobby of Harrison Memorial Library.

Grace objected to the fact that renovations included no tables on which to place card catalogue drawers, and that the copy machine was not moved to a more suitable location.

Pelikan explained that she and the staff considered these problems, but due to the space available, no solutions could be found.

Pearce gave the staff's point of view. "Overall it's a very good plan," she said.

Planning board studies move to halve density of apartments, condos

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A PLAN to nearly halve the allowable density for new apartments and condominiums in the city will be presented to the Carmel Planning Commission Wednesday, June 12.

The special study session will begin at 4 p.m. at Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center.

Commissioners are to get their first look at the specific plan for the multiple-family residential zone — generally bordered by Fifth and Third avenues, and Torres and Mission streets.

A specific plan is similar to a city-wide general plan, but focuses on a certain zone within the town. The specific plan governs ments or condominiums in the R-4 zone at a density of 33 units per acre.

"The motivation behind that (reduction) is the water that's been allocated for the R-4 is based on 25-to-one (units per acre)," White said.

The city has allocated certain amounts of water to each zone — single-family residential (R-1), commercial and R-4 — because of supply problems. Carmel has used 98.7 percent of its 1030.8 acre feet allocation. (An acre foot is 325,851 gallons.)

If one specific zone consumes its available water then building would have to halt until an alternative supply can be found.

Although details had not been developed, the specific plan also is expected to require more parking and open space in the R-4 zone. Stricter design controls also are expected.

Alan Williams, who developed an 11-unit condominium project on the southwest corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues, is expected to be the developer most affected by the new specific plan restrictions.

Williams has talked informally with the city about a pair of other condominium projects — one on the northwest corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues, and a second directly across the street.

WILLIAMS, who said he needs to analyze the specific plan proposals before commenting on most of the restrictions, expressed concern about the proposed density reduction.

"It's very detrimental, but you have to wait and see what they come up with," he said. "Reduced density just drives up the land cost per unit. It's a wait and see until we see what the city will allow us to do."

Williams hopes to work with the city to develop a specific plan that meets the con-

'It's very detrimental, but you have to wait and see what they come up with. Reduced density just drives up the land cost per unit.'

such issues as density, allowable uses and parking requirements.

Details of the specific plan were not worked out by press time.

However, Planning Director Diane White told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that density will be substantially reduced under the proposal.

The draft specific plan proposes a density of 20 units per acre in the R-4 zone, or a maximum of 27 units per acre if the developer sets aside several of the apartments or condominiums for low and moderate income tenants.

Currently a developer may build apartcerns of the city staff and also provides him with a project opportunity.

"There's got to be a common ground we all can live with," Williams said.

Commissioners also have several other issues to tackle that afternoon.

A "cleanup" ordinance that amends parts of city codes governing business will be presented to commissioners for possible recommendation to the council, White said.

Although most of the draft ordinance consists of "wording" changes, there are two key provisions, she said.

The ordinance would require conditional use permits to be obtained before businesses could expand or decrease floor area, or sublease space to another professional or shop.

The conditional use permit requirement would give the city the legal tool to place restrictions on the businesses.

If adopted, the ordinance could control the size of the space to be subdivided or subleased, and what kind of secondary business is allowed.

For example, the city may not want an art gallery to expand its floor space. With the conditional use permit the city can deny the expansion.

Or, a retail shop may want to reduce floor space and sublet the room to another business, which is a practice the city is expected to discourage.

Subdivision of offices is common. For example, an attorney with a large two-office space may want to sublease the extra room to another lawyer.

However, that would add another business in the building without provisions for parking or water availability. Thus, a conditional use permit would allow the city to control such subleases if necessary.

A second provision in the "cleanup" ordinance directly spells out a city ban on "in and about businesses."

THE DRAFT ordinance would not abate the existing flower-selling operation, The Rose Lady.

White explained that the existing city code prohibits such uses, but the new wording would make the prohibition "very explicit."

The June 12 study session originally was scheduled and publicly noticed as a review of the draft environmental impact report for the proposed Harrison Memorial Library expansion.

But the city council has indicated it does not plan to take any action on the proposed library expansion until after tabulation of the responses to the questionnaire.

Thus the planning commission will postpone work on the draft EIR until the council provides further direction.

English students honored

TEN CARMEL High School students can sport a different kind of Olympic award — this one for academics. The students in Bob Walch's ninth grade English class placed 15th out of 212 schools nationwide in the "1985 National Language Arts Olympiad" testing

Schools offer free summer classes

SEVERAL FREE summer classes for Carmel Unified School District students still are open, although space is limited.

There will be a summer writing project from July 29 to Aug. 16 with a focus on the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Students will write about visits to the aquarium and research the various forms of ocean life.

Separate programs also are available in math and language arts from June 19 to July 10.

Middle school also offers programs in industrial arts (a materials fee will be charged) from June 18 to July 26, and computer education from June 19 to July 10.

At Carmel River School there is room in a math, reading comprehensive and puppetry program for grades four and five starting in mid-June.

At Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley, fourth and fifth graders can attend a "sports theme" program that includes instruction in writing and math. Grades two and three at Tularcitos School may attend a learning program that revolves around a theme of "Celebration of America."

For middle school students needing to pass the proficiency exam, language arts and math classes are offered for grades seven and eight.

High school proficiency classes in English and math for all grades also are available.

Class sizes are limited. For registration information, contact the middle school at 624-2785, Tularcitos School at 659-2276, the high school at 624-1821, or River School at 624-4609.

Council will allow July 4th fireworks

DESPITE THE protests of several residents, the Carmel City Council stuck to its guns and will allow fireworks on the beach this Fourth of July holiday.

The council in a special session Friday, May 31 adopted on final reading an ordinance to allow state-licensed fireworks on Carmel Beach.

A week earlier, the council on an identical 4-1 vote gave initial approval on first reading to an ordinance to allow state-licensed "safe and sane" fireworks on the beach. Councilman James Wright was the lone dissenter in both votes.

The council also reaffirmed a ban on parking on Scenic and San Antonio July Fourth. Fires larger than three feet high or three feet wide are prohibited. All fires must be doused by 10 p.m.

The council for the past two years has banned fireworks because of the large crowds on the beach.

The problems climaxed in 1982 when a melee broke out between police, firefighters and a large crowd which had built a huge bonfire. Firefighters doused the bonfire and the crowd. Police also had to rush the crowd to break it up and several arrests were made.

But two years later the preliminary questionnaire results indicate by a 2-1 margin that residents want fireworks on the beach.

However, several residents who took the time to attend the special council meeting think otherwise.

Most of their objections are based on fear of fires and a possible repeat of the 1982 problems. They also stressed that the police department has recommended against allowing fireworks.

"I think there are serious fire hazards from fireworks," said Perry Bower of Carmel, who added that a fire could be spread by an ocean wind.

The ground cover on the beach banks could be easily ignited. "It's a tinderbox at the moment," he said.

Bower complained of the large crowds, most of which are from out of town. He said he talked to people coming to the beach and "I didn't see a soul come down the road from Carmel."

Bower also complained that in 1982 young people dismantled part of his fence for use as firewood.

Frank Johnston of Carmel told of people wrecking his fence for firewood. He added "some young men used my front yard as a bathroom."

Johnston, who said he has lived in Carmel for about 30 years, told the council that the fireworks "used to be a family affair" but now the huge crowds have ruined the tradition.

JOHNSTON liked the fireworks ban the past two years.

"Last year everything was lovely. People could enjoy the beach without all the disorder."

Barbara Lysle of Carmel asked the council to heed the police warnings. "I think the council should listen to the police department who will have the burden of protecting our beach."

But the council remained unwavering. "I agree with most everything everybody said," Councilman Robert Stephenson said.

But Stephenson said he is bound to heed the questionnaire results. "I think I'll carry on despite my better judgment."

Like the others, Mayor Charlotte Townsend warned that fireworks could be banned forever if "rowdies ruin it for all."

The mayor said she hopes the crowd will be "well mannered" and "respect the fragility" of the environment.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold agreed: "I'd like to try it for one year and if it doesn't work, cut it out next year."

Councilman David Maradei believes the issue now is "beyond fireworks."

Maradei said the "credibility" of the council is at stake because the city asked for citizen advice in the survey.

Councilman James Wright steadfastly maintained that the fireworks pose a fire danger and said unruly crowds are a public safety danger.

Wright challenged the council to be at the beach that night to see firsthand if there are any problems. Maradei accepted the challenge and he and Wright plan to walk the beach together July Fourth.

Fire chief controversy smoulders

By JOE MCGOWAN

AS SUMMER approaches, the hills of Carmel Valley lose their green color and change to a shade of brown — dead of plant life but ripe for fires.

This dry season, however, when fire and ambulance services are important as ever, the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Department is faced with a different kind of crisis. The station became engulfed in controversy three weeks ago when its board of directors allegedly forced Chief Dan Guice to submit a letter of resignation.

The majority of the 28 volunteer firefighters were outraged by the decision. They voted, on their own, to rehire Guice as chief and instead dismiss board chairman Ed Haber. Guice has since withdrawn his resignation and is trying to return to his job through litigation.

Many volunteers claim no explanation was given for the board decision. Some believe Guice was a victim of a personality conflict with Haber, owner of Quail Lodge. Yet, others feel the department had real morale problems under Chief Guice.

Haber claims the board cannot divulge its complaints against Guice — even to the firefighters — because they deal with personnel matters.

Most agree, however, that regardless of Guice's present ability, his first days as chief were somewhat rocky. One volunteer, who asked not to be identified, said: "At first, I didn't get along with Dan [Guice] very well. There were a lot more conflicts in the beginning. He wanted to change some things we didn't like right off."

Most volunteers say this is partly due to the comparison with previous chief Ron Zeise. Battalion Chief Maya Miyamoto said: "Zeise was an excellent man, and they expected Dan to fill his shoes right away."

He's [Guice] not the same sort of personality, so a lot of people have had high expectations," said volunteer Paul Pilotte.

Guice was placed on probation 14 months ago, according to Bill Brown, a fire board member until one year ago. Guice has been advised by his attorney not to comment.

ED HABER, owner of Quail Lodge and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Department, said the decision to ask for Chief Guice's resignation was not motivated by personal favoritism.

been no recent change in his performance," Pilotte said. "That just wasn't the case."

Soon after the decision, Haber and Brian Smith, who is both a board member and president of the volunteers, met with the volunteers to discuss the decision.

The volunteers cited a complete lack of communication at this meeting. "The directors sat down with us and they gave us no direct answers," Pilotte said. "They kept beating around the bush."

"They didn't have anything concrete to show us," concurred Miyamoto.

Haber answered these charges by agreeing. "The board has not given the specific reasons [for Guice's dismissal] and the board has no intention of discussing personnel information."

SOME volunteers have suggested that the board's reasons may deal with elements outside Guice's performance as chief. It was reported that just two days before the board decision, Guice had discussed with Haber a citizen complaint concerning Haber's use of an emergency light on the way to a fire call.

The volunteer, who asked not to be identified, attested that Haber and Guice had disagreed before.

"In one situation, Dan didn't jump up to help Ed [Haber] right away," he said. "Ed got really mad and went stomping out of

COMPETITION in various riding and jumping events will be featured at the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club Summer Horse Show

June 16 at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club.

Kiwanis Horse Show scheduled June 16 in CV

AS SHE has ever since the first Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club Summer Horse Show 15 years ago, Mrs. Hiram N. Bishop of Carmel Valley will represent the California State Horsemen's Association when the show takes place June 16.

"One of the functions of CSHA is to provide the rules which govern horse shows, just as the American Horse Show Association does. The Summer Show is approved by the CSHA and so must operate under the rules," she said.

Mrs. Bishop will present CSHA medals to the winners of three classes in the show — Hunt Seat medals for riders 17 and under, and 18 and over, in the English division and a Stock Seat medal for those 17 and under in the western division.

"These are very interesting classes to watch," she said. "The Hunt Seat medal is awarded to the rider whose horse best emulates the hunter in the field, including successfully making eight jumps of the type encountered in a hunt. For the Stock Seat medal, the aim is to demonstrate the work of the ranch horse, including round-up."

Steve Austin, secretary-manager of the show, said entries are coming in and he urged all entrants to send in their premium sheets before June 13. After that date an extra post-entry fee of $2 per class will be charged.

The show will be at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club at the east end of Garzas Road. There are 60 classes. Judging begins at 8 a.m. June 16 in two arenas and continues until all are judged, usually around 6 p.m.

Admission to the show is free and food may be purchased from booths manned by Kiwanis volunteers, right on the grounds. Proceeds from entry fees, food sales and the show programs will go to support Carmel Valley youth projects.

Mid-Valley [firehouse]."

According to Miyamoto, the volunteers do not "relish" Haber's habits of accompanying the volunteers on emergency calls without attending the volunteers' regular Tuesday night training sessions.

"He just doesn't know when not to meddle on calls and when he does, he just gets in the way and adds to the confusion of the thing," said Pilotte. "We have asked him to stop time and time again. Dan finally called him on it and I don't know if it was a coincidence but a couple of days afterwards he was fired."

Haber stressed that his decision was not biased by personal favoritism. He also pointed out that the decision to ask for Guice's resignation was not his alone.

"The members of the board have all been involved in management decisions and community service for years and all are free thinkers," Haber said.

Volunteer David Ngai, who works at Quail Lodge, supported the board decision. "Ed hasn't always been right, but he's not wrong here," Ngai said.

Ngai believes certain firefighters felt uncomfortable in the "political arena" of the fire station under Guice. "We lost one fireman. A man who was going to make a career out of fighting fires left the trade completely. A second-in-command officer applied for a job at another station. And I heard the secretary was looking to go somewhere else."

NGAI SAID many of the chief's supporters in the recent vote were mistaken about the facts. "A lot of these people who were volunteer firemen, a lot of them were so shallow, they were blind to see what was going on during the last two years."

Thigpen said lawyers from both camps plan to meet in the next couple of weeks to attempt a settlement out of court. Lynn Caldwell was designated by the board as acting chief, and Haber claims "service will go on as usual."

The volunteer who asked not to be identified said: "I may leave if Ed stays in there."

"The thing I'm afraid of is the department can go to pieces right now if this isn't resolved," Miyamoto said. "We could have people quit. That could bring hardships to all the people of the district."

County starts revision of EIR on master plan

MONTEREY COUNTY once again will try to develop revisions to the environmental impact report for the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan.

The revisions are intended to protect the Valley against adverse impacts of future development.

The county has just released the proposed "scope of work" for a revised Carmel Valley Master Plan Environmental Impact Report as it begins to call for bids from consultants who wish to prepare the document.

The scope of work is an outline of what the consultant is expected to incorporate in the EIR.

Supervisors are expected to award the contract for preparing the EIR sometime within the next month.

County problems with the master plan have been prolonged.

In 1980 the city of Carmel filed a lawsuit that challenged adequacy of environmental safeguards in the county-prepared master plan.

The city also contended that the court should require an EIR for the master plan, which the county initially had not prepared.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver agreed. He ruled that the county would have to rework the master plan and prepare an environmental impact report.

Silver also ordered a moratorium on discretionary use permits, which has kept out of the Valley most new major residential and commercial developments, except in already developed areas such as Carmel Rancho and Mid-Valley shopping centers.

The county in late 1983 adopted a revised master plan and EIR, which immediately were assailed by the city as inadequate.

The county filed court action with Silver that asked him to certify the plan and the EIR, and to lift the moratorium.

Once again Silver sided with the city of Carmel and issued a stinging indictment of the county process in his lengthy ruling.

Silver admonished the county for adding findings to the master plan to support its contentions even after the issue had gone to court.

The judge cited numerous deficiencies in the master plan in the area of environmental safeguards. He also objected to a lack of public hearings for the EIR and draft master plan.

The scope of work for the revisions to the environmental impact report repeatedly lists Silver's comments as a source for any consultant who will tackle the assignment.

Silver's decision is included in the background material sent to consultants interested in submitting a bid.

THE SCOPE of work centers around two important concepts.

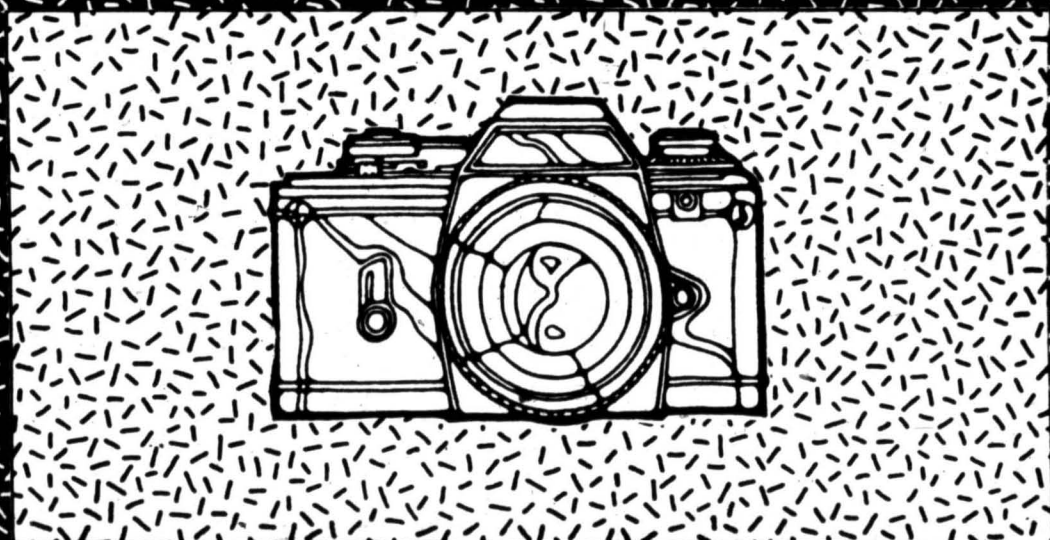

The first is an update of all building activity in the Valley. Second, the consultant is to address potential impacts outside development may have on the Valley.

THE CARMEL Valley Master Plan is supposed to keep the area and its rolling green hills free from over-development. But Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver contends that the master plan and its environmental impact report have inadequate safeguards. The county has released a scope of work that details how the EIR will address the concerns raised by the judge. (Susan Bock photo.)

Willow-planting project

TWO BROWNIE and Girl Scout troops from the Carmel area pitched in recently to help Monterey Peninsula Water Management District staff plant willow stems along the Carmel River as part of their council-wide "Trees for the Future" project. After they heard presentations by Graham Matthews and Chris Petony on the important role willows play in stabilizing river banks, the girls helped dig six 10-foot trenches and planted 75 willows at the Boronda Bridge. Leader Phyllis Keel said the girls "just wanted to do something for the community" and learned of the district willow planting program. Willow planting is one aspect of the district plan to help control erosion on the Carmel River.

County tackles revision of master plan EIR

The consultant will be asked to analyze all new building to determine whether it may be necessary to reduce the number of new lots of record to be allowed in the Valley in the next 20 years.

A key component in the draft master plan is its allocation system, which allows for up to 1,181 new lots of record to be built in the Valley during the next two decades. The existing approximately 1,000 lots of record are not subject to the allocation limit.

But if new development over the past few years has added strain on roads, water supply and sewage, supervisors may wish to use those details in the EIR to reduce allowable building.

On the other hand, the scope of work tells the consultant to consider growth-inducing projects that may allow for more development.

For example, the scope of work requires the consultant to analyze whether the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway or a new Carmel River dam would provide sufficient services for more development.

The effects of the new underpass at Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads — which was not completed when the initial master plan was developed — also should be included as a traffic mitigation measure, according to the scope of work.

If a new EIR finds that these mitigation measures are sufficient, supervisors could use that information as a legal tool to increase the proposed allocation restriction of 1,181 new lots of record.

The scope of work also requires the consultant to incorporate in the EIR any potential influences from other zoning plans, including the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program and the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan.

Water supply strategy guards fish resources

A NEW water supply strategy and agreements which establish minimum water releases from San Clemente dam will protect fishery resources and meet municipal water demands, according to directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

An important goal of district Ordinance 19, which governs water production strategies, is to limit surface water diversion from the Carmel River at the San Clemente dam to 35 percent of total production.

The remaining 65 percent of supply would come from groundwater reserves in Seaside and Carmel Valley. Under this plan, more water will be released downstream and recaptured by wells in the lower Carmel Valley.

"Water flowing downstream benefits us twice," said Chairwoman Pat Bernardi of Carmel Valley. "First, it is available for recreation and enhancement of the river environment; then it provides drinking water when captured by the production wells. We want to promote this type of multiple water use whenever possible."

An agreement between California-American Water Co., the Department of Fish and Game, and the district established release schedules and a minimum flow rate for water from San Clemente Dam. The purpose of this agreement is to maintain a healthy fish and wildlife habitat by allowing more water to remain in the river, especially at the narrows near Garland Park.

"Besides the fishery benefits, it makes sense to keep water in the river as long as possible," said Director John Williams of Carmel Highlands. "Water in the river keeps the streamside vegetation alive, and healthy vegetation is critical for erosion control as it stabilizes river banks. It's in all our best interest to maintain a healthy river, though it may be more costly."

Water supply strategies also must be viewed in the broader context of state law and policy, according to Williams. The state constitution declares that water resources must be put to "beneficial use to the fullest extent of which they are capable."

Section 1243 of the state water code defines recreation, preservation and enhancement of fish and wildlife resources as "beneficial uses of water" which must be considered when authorizing water use.

"Diverting water downstream may cost an extra $50 per acre foot but the environmental 'Diverting water downstream may cost an extra $50 per acre foot but the environmental benefits and potential legal action justify the expense.'

benefits and potential legal action justify the expense," Williams said. "Litigation regarding water diversion from streams feeding Mono Lake may apply here."

An amicus brief filed by state Attorney General John Van De Kamp argued that state laws give special weight to fish protection below dams. For example, Section 5937 of the Fish and Game Code requires dam owners to allow sufficient water to pass through a dam to protect fish located below it.

"We have developed a water supply strategy which addresses the needs of the community, the water purveyor and the environment to the best of our ability," Williams said. "We have tried to satisfy both state agencies and local residents."

Teachers bring recall dispute into the schools

using school paper for the newsletter surfaced, the newsletter seems to have disappeared.

THE LATEST flap over teacher involvement in the recall campaign arose Thursday, May 30 when the Association of Carmel Teachers sponsored its version of a candidates' night.

The teachers' association chose not to invite all the candidates.

Instead, the ACT at its Carmel Middle School meeting limited participation to the three candidates it already has endorsed: Hilton Bialek, Claudio Daniels and Pat Herro.

Not invited to attend were the three trustees targeted for recall: Yates, Fenton and Bromfield.

The other two candidates, Tim Grady and Bill Sanford, also were left off the invitation list.

The ACT event was questioned by several parents in telephone calls to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook last week.

Concerns were raised about the fairness of a candidates' night without all the contenders and about the propriety of using school facilities for a political event.

The stated intention of ACT for that affair was to introduce the three endorsed contenders to educators who reside in the district.

Although the invitations were mailed only to educators from public and private schools, the teachers opened the doors to the public.

Although a written invitation was not mailed in advance, teacher union President Imogene Speiser invited this newspaper to attend, but only after inquiries had been made about the meeting.

And teachers did not try to ban parent Sandra Deuker from the meeting although Deuker is a known supporter of Fenton, Yates and Bromfield.

Speiser told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that the meeting was not designed to be a candidates' forum.

Rather it was to give "educators" the opportunity to meet and question the ACT-endorsed contenders.

"You don't invite Brand Y when you're promoting Brand X," said Speiser, who added that there have been "coffees" in the private homes of teachers for the three candidates.

Chuck Phillips, director of educational services, said district policy and state education code guidelines specifically permit such meetings on campus.

whether teachers collected campaign contributions, which they say they did not.

If contributions were collected, then a $30 fee should have been charged for use of the library, Phillips said.

Teachers long have supported the recall campaign primarily because they believe Rand was forced to resign as superintendent.

Teachers also were angered by the long drawn-out contract dispute, that only Monday was settled. They also perceive Fenton, Yates and Bromfield as anti-teacher.

The teachers worked long and hard on the recall petition drive. Many went door-to-door and there have been allegations that parents were approached on campus to sign the petitions. Teachers deny those charges.

Teachers early in the campaign said they would wait to see the entire field of replacement candidates before any official endorsements were made.

However, on April 29 — two weeks before the filing period closed — the Association of Carmel Teachers Political Action Committee filed a campaign statement with the Monterey County Registrar of Voters that lists its support of Herro, Daniels and Bialek.

The statement is signed by Speiser and newly-elected ACT President John Durein.

This unofficial endorsement was made even while Herro, Daniels and Bialek were denying that they are the teachers' candidates.

When asked about the early endorsement, Speiser said the campaign statement was necessary to meet the deadline for contributions from the state organization, the California Teachers Association.

The CTA has given $300 to the Association of Carmel Teachers with no questions asked. It is a common practice by the state union to support financially causes and candidates endorsed by its local affiliates, Speiser said.

Speiser said the union was ready to switch endorsements, depending on any other candidates to file.

But teachers definitely do not support Sanford, although he is a teacher. Sanford, who filed May 16, is the husband of former trustee Barbara Sanford, who during her tenure was not considered by teachers to be friendly to their causes.

And Grady, who also filed after the April 29 ACT endorsement, was never given any serious consideration by the teachers. Grady is considered by teachers as a one-issue candidate who merely is running to expound environmental views.

Teachers never have met with Fenton, Yates and Bromfield to determine whether they warrant support.

THE TEACHERS' lounge at Carmel River School during the heat of the recall campaign sported a bulletin board with the latest political information. But, although sometimes students appear in the lounge, teachers for a while kept on the wall this graffiti-marred newspaper article that had an axe in Jim Yates' head and a dagger in the face of Susan Bromfield.

Foreign students say farewell to America

FOR TANIA Harper and Maroula Couninioti, graduation day this June means not only goodbye to classmates, but also farewell to the United States.

Tania and Maroula are foreign exchange students who have attended Carmel High School this past year through the American Field Service.

Here they lived with host families who provide them with food and lodging while the students learn about America and her people and at the same time continue their academic education.

The American Field Service program comes highly recommended by Tania and Maroula.

"I will be involved in the program when I go back," said Maroula, an 18-year-old from the Greek port city of Patras with a better command of English than many Americans.

Maroula, whose aunt and sister participated in the AFS program, said there is a need for more host families in the Carmel area.

"Carmel High has a lot of exchange students, but their program can't find room for all those who wish to come," she said.

"The people in the program really care about you."

Tania, also 18, agrees: "Definitely, I'd recommend it. It's just a great opportunity. It gives you a new feeling about the world and the people here."

Tania came to Carmel from a small farming village in New Zealand. She had attended a private boarding school, which is where she first learned of AFS.

"There were always people coming back to our school who would talk about coming to America," Tania explained. "It's a good opportunity. I just thought I'd learn a lot."

Maroula got enthusiastic about the program when she talked with her aunt and sister. "We'd talk about it and I'd get excited. I really wanted to come. I think everyone wants to come to America."

Maroula is sponsored by David and Wendy Banks while Tania lives with Roland and Donna Schut.

TANIA AND Maroula agree that a tad of homesickness was the first problem to overcome.

"When I was back home I couldn't wait. I wanted to drop everything and come straight away. Then I wasn't so certain," Tania said.

"But I was used to boarding school. I had sort of two lives. The biggest change was being away from your friends and not being around people you know," Tania added.

For Maroula it was the same. "The first month I was homesick. You didn't know the people around you and who your (host) family would be."

But both said they are fortunate because the American Field Service supporters help students meet each other.

"We had a big dinner and were able to meet other AFSers and we were able to meet some people from the high school and to make good friends," Maroula said.

The experience has been a maturing one for the two women.

"I learned a lot about myself...I have more confidence. And I think all people are alike; it is just the places that are different," Tania said.

"You feel independent," added Maroula. "I feel I want to tell people about my country. I want to share my country with other people."

As for their favorite things about America, Maroula likes Yosemite, the hills around

Carmel and the large homes. "In my city it's all flats, apartments. Here it is more calm with the homes."

Tania laughed and said "amusement parks."

"It's such a big country. I liked New Mexico," said Tania, who visited that state when she first arrived.

Although they've had a wonderful year, both women say they plan to return and live in their native countries.

"This country is just too big. I'm used to little New Zealand," Tania said. "I'm going to come back for a visit. I just don't want to live here."

Maroula at one time thought about attending college here, but does not plan to make America home.

The Carmel branch of the American Field Service is in need of host families who would provide room and board for a foreign exchange student.

The students, who will live here from August until June, are seniors and can speak English. They receive a small stipend from the AFS for personal expenses.

Host families need not have children in the schools to sponsor a foreign exchange student.

For more information, call Nellie Ryder at Carmel High School, 624-1821.

WHALES WERE ALMOST EXTINCT

The gray whales which annually migrate 10,000 miles from the Arctic to Baja California, past the shores of the Monterey Peninsula, were nearly extinct 30 years ago. Since they have become a totally protected species, estimates on the herd's total now range from 12,000 to 15,000.

17-MILE DRIVE WAS LONGER

The original 17-Mile Drive, constructed 50 years ago, began and ended at the old Hotel Del Monte, which is now the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. Initially the drive encircled the entire Monterey Peninsula, but now it is routed only through the scenic Del Monte Forest.

County planners weigh Del Monte moratorium

THE MONTEREY County Planning Commission is expected to approve a technical rezoning application for a 13-lot subdivision in Pebble Beach the same day that it takes under consideration a moratorium on all new building in Del Monte Forest.

Commissioners will consider the two issues Wednesday, June 12 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

The rezoning application is just a technicality as a follow-up to May 8 commission approval of the project, according to staff Planner Nick Chiulos.

The subdivision is proposed for a 20.29-acre parcel near Padre Lane and Ondulado Road. The lots will be approximately 1.5 acres in size, he said. Commissioners will review the application at 9:05 a.m.

The subdivision application is to be presented to the board of supervisors June 25.

There is a moratorium on new sewage connections in Pebble Beach until additional capacity is developed — which is expected by December through a contract with the Carmel Sanitary District.

Chiulos explained that it is "not uncommon" for the county to approve projects contingent on meeting requirements, such as finding sewage capacity and water supply.

"If the conditions are not met, the development cannot go ahead," he said.

Concerns about water supply were raised at the May 8 commission session. However, only Commissioners Dave Hendrick and Marit Evans opposed the subdivision.

Although the Griffin subdivision has been recommended for approval by the planning commission, there is another measure that would stop most new major developments if adopted.

The commission at 2:30 p.m. is to consider a proposed moratorium on the creation of new lots of record in Del Monte Forest.

The moratorium has been pushed by Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas of Seaside, who represents most of the forest residents.

Karas wants to ensure that county services, such as water supply, sewage capacity and roads, can cope with new development before allowing more building.

In other action, commissioners at 11:15 a.m. are to consider an application from the Subud religious order to operate a 25-student day care center off Carmel Valley Road near Camp Stephani.

Commissioners again will review a plan by the Carmel Valley Little League to build a new field and scoreboard near Paso Hondo Road. A time had not been scheduled for that review.

Commissioners reviewed the application May 29 but postponed action in light of protests from several neighbors.

CARMEL HIGH School drafting and woodshop students worked with the city to develop maps and frames for emergency evacuation procedures in all city-owned buildings, such as Sunset Center, Forest Theater and city hall. The students are in Lowell Batcher's woodshop class and Bob Brooks' drafting course. Later, city fire engineer John Jacoby

Infelise assumes new post

ROBERT INFELISE formally took over as superintendent of Carmel Unified School District Monday night and it didn't take long for his newness to be appreciated.

Midway through a rather dull school board meeting, two Carmel High School seniors stood up and made a pitch for an open campus during the spring semester of 1986, but for only 12th graders.

In a controversial move in February of 1984, trustees closed the high school campus to all students.

But the students requested that the board give consideration to an "incentive" proposal that would allow seniors in good standing to leave campus at lunch during the second semester.

cond semester.

The board listened politely and President Susan Bromfield thanked students Greg Guzaitis and John Van Zander before she quickly moved on to the next agenda item without responding.

The students seemed uncertain about the next step because there was no response from the board about whether it would consider the matter.

That type of incident has been a common occurrence at board meetings which has perturbed some members of the audience who sometimes did not receive adequate responses from the board.

But Infelise immediately stepped in to keep the discussion alive.

"I think you should give them feedback," Infelise interjected before Bromfield could move on.

Infelise suggested that a committee of students, parents, teachers and administrators could review the students' proposal and report back to the board in the fall.

By that little one-minute response, Infelise dashed any concerns that his administration will allow even the smallest of suggestions to go by without a response.

The major agenda item last night was official ratification of contracts with teachers, administrators and classified staff.

Trustees unanimously granted each group a 4 percent cost of living increase. The classified staff had already accepted a smaller pay hike, but trustees upped that offer to make the salary increases equitable for all groups.

Total cost of the raises is $225,000, which will come out of reserve funds.

Trustees also accepted the retirements of teachers Neil Smith and Carl Schmuck, and the request for a year-long leave of absence for teacher Gordon Campbell.

City employees get safety manual

CARMEL CITY employees soon will undergo training to help them respond faster in the event of a fire or earthquake in a municipal building, such as city hall, Harrison Memorial Library or Sunset Center.

Fire engineer John Jacoby has put the finishing touches on a booklet entitled Emergency Evacuation Plan for Municipal Facilities that details how employees can best evacuate a building in the event of a disaster.

In the next few weeks, Jacoby will train city employees and test drills are planned.

The booklet and training especially is important for employees who work in buildings occupied by large numbers of visitors, such as Sunset Center and the library, city Director of Administrative Services Greg D'Ambrosio explained.

Employees will be expected to learn the manual, which outlines escape routes and safety procedures.

The evacuation program includes the installation of escape route maps at strategic locations in the buildings.

The maps were prepared in cooperation with Carmel High School students, D'Ambrosio said.

Members of Bob Brooks' drafting class produced the maps while students in Lowell Batcher's woodshop course built the frames.

Water management board considers CV wells

PRESENTATION of water conserving landscape awards, consideration of a water supply budget for 1985-86, review of a report on Seaside groundwater reserves and implementation of an irrigation project for lower Carmel Valley wells are among agenda items for the June 10 meeting of Monterey Peninsula Water Management District directors.

The meeting will convene at 7:30 p.m. at the Monterey City Council Chambers, Colton Hall. The public is welcome.

Winners of the district water conserving landscape contest will be announced and awarded certificates of commendation after a slide presentation showing various nominations.

Winners will be selected in three categories: single-family homes, multi-family residences (apartments and condominiums), and commercial or public projects. Complimentary brochures on drought tolerant plants and landscaping ideas will be available to the public.

The board will consider a monthly water supply budget proposed by California-

American Water Co. The budget outlines the company plan to achieve the district water supply strategy goals adopted at the May 13 meeting.

More water will be pumped from Seaside and Carmel Valley wells to allow more flow from San Clemente Dam. The board believes this strategy best achieves long-term sustained yield through water management and environmental enhancement.

In other business, the board will review a report from Converse Consultants which provides engineering estimates on the cost of new water yields from the eastern Seaside aquifer. Up to 1,400 acre feet of new water annually could be developed at a cost of $5 million.

Construction of the proposed new San Clemente Dam would provide 5,000 acre feet for $34.5 million. The Seaside aquifer is one of several resources being studied as alternative projects to the dam as part of the environmental impact report.

The board will refine a plan approved last month regarding a portable irrigation system to protect vegetation near wells in the lower Carmel Valley. The irrigation system should offset the loss of water due to groundwater pumping planned for this summer.

CVPOA board meets

THE CARMEL Valley Property Owners Association Board of Directors will meet Wednesday, June 12.

The board session, which is open to the public, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church off Robinson Canyon Road.

Several updates are included on the board agenda.

David Armanasco will report on the membership drive, Vicky Andrews will discuss plans for a summer party and Rod Mills will address the Carmel Valley Road median strip beautification project and the status of the parks and trails development.

There also will be reports on land use issues and an update on Valley matters before the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

CASINO NIGHT BENEFITS CV COMMUNITY CENTER

Professional croupiers will offer an evening of gambling complete with crap tables, blackjack, a roulette table and slot machines in a Monte Carlo Night Saturday, June 8 at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley.

The gaming and socializing get underway at 8 p.m. and run until midnight. All proceeds will benefit the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

Participants will gamble for such prizes as trips to gambling casinos in Reno, Tahoe and Las Vegas.

Those who want to help the Community Center can do so by sponsoring one or more of the tables. There are 15 blackjack tables, one roulette table, two crap tables and eight slot machines in need of sponsorship. Sponsorships are tax deductible, according to Community Center spokesmen.

Funds raised in the event will assist adult and children's classes, summer and day camp, after-school day care, swim programs and social events.

Any persons or businesses desiring to become sponsors for the event should contact Cathy Camp, corresponding secretary, at 659-3983.

Carol Bialek, who graduated with honors from the University of California at Berkeley May 24, received a John Gardner Fellowship for Public Service which will take her to Washington, D.C. to continue her studies of American government.

Paul Bialek, who graduated in June of 1984 from the University of California at Santa Cruz, is the recipient of a Mellon Fellowship for graduate study in the humanities and will attend Johns Hopkins University in the fall. ### THOMAS ALLYN SCHOOL RECOGNIZES CONTRIBUTORS

The Thomas Allyn School mixed business with pleasure Saturday, May 25 as its sponsor's club raised $14,000 in the school's first fund-raiser — a "Round of Pleasures" golf tournament followed by a dinner and auction at Mission Ranch Resort in Carmel.

It was a night for recognition, especially for the school founder and director Jeffrey Allyn who has brought hope to area children with specific language disabilities (sometimes called dyslexia).

Thirty percent of the Seaside school enrollment represents Carmel children.

Also recognized were Bob and Leslie Buck of Pebble Beach, who picked up the tab for the steak barbecue; Frank and Kathy Enea of Monterey, who provided dessert; and Nicki McMahan of Pebble Beach and Virginia Northcote of Carmel, who organized the event. Other heroes-of-giving included the donors of a cornucopia of treasures for the auction.

Masters of ceremonies John Bohlman of Carmel and Ted Balestreri of Pebble Beach kept the evening rolling while auctioneer Chuck Huggins of Pebble Beach encouraged his audience to part with some of the crispy green to help the fledgling school fly.

Nadya Giusi, former director of area Montessori schools, set the tone for the evening by welcoming the Thomas Allyn school to the Monterey Peninsula. "I've been waiting for this kind of program in our community for 25 years," she said.

CARMELITES GRADUATE FROM LAW SCHOOL

Five Carmel residents graduated June 1 with Doctor of Jurisprudence degrees from the Monterey College of Law. They are Vicki Bamman, Jack Holmgren, Thomas McCann, Daniel McLeod, Jr. and Richard Thompson.

Graduation ceremonies were conducted Sunday, June 2 at Santa Catalina School in Monterey. Congressman Leon Panetta (D-Carmel Valley) was the keynote speaker.

THE HOSPITAL stay for Nakitia D'he Miller, 9 (right), was brightened by students of York School in Monterey last week, when Carmel resident Gena Lewis (left), president of the school student body, presented Nakitia with a Cabbage Patch doll. The doll was donated to York School. Rather than auctioning or selling it, the York School Student Council decided to give it to someone who would love it and take care of it, according to George Lear, director of development. Nakitia received the gift at Community Hospital after having her spleen removed as the result of injuries in a playground fall.

Karen has maintained a 3.5 grade point average, is a past member of the California Scholarship Federation (CSF) and has taken advanced placement college level courses in history and literature. She likes to ride horses and play powder puff football. She also is a member of the Rainbow Girls, an affiliate of the Masons. Karen plans to be a corporate attorney. Tina is a topnotch student with a 3.89 grade point average and is a lifetime CSF student. She is ranked seventh in her class and each year has been honored as one of the "top 100" students. She also received a Bank of America award for foreign languages, is a member of the French Club and will attend Camp Royal, a leadership program. In addition, Tina is the number one Padre tennis player and has received an $1,800 tennis scholarship to Santa Clara. (Michael Gardner photo.)

SYMPHONY GUILD HAS ANNUAL MEETING

Catherine French, executive vice president and chief executive officer of the American Symphony Orchestra League in Washington, D.C., was the speaker at the 30th annual luncheon meeting of the Monterey County Symphony Guild, Monterey Peninsula Chapter at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club on May 31.

Mrs. John Roland, retiring president, presented a check for $25,000 to William Doolittle, president of the Monterey County Symphony Association — whose mother was a founder of the Guild.

Mrs. Roland noted that the total raised by the Symphony Guild for the year was $50,000. This income came from five special events plus ongoing contests and the boutique sponsored by the league and countless volunteer hours.

Mrs. Roland said "thank you" to community members who supported these fund-raising specials and the volunteers who worked for their success, from the B-Sharp Follies to Play Day.

Mrs. Roland commented that "the perpetuation of excellent music is our only goal."

Maestro and Mrs. Haymo Taeuber were honored for the last time before his official retirement. Presenting a bouquet of roses to Mrs. Taeuber, Mrs. Roland said: "Thank you for lending him to us."

Mrs. John Andrews was elected president for the 1985-86 term.

Vice presidents are Mrs. Albert Taylor, Mrs. Richard Lord and Mrs. Walter Freitas; Mrs. John McSorley, recording secretary, Mrs. Edward McWilliams, corresponding secretary. Treasurer will be Mrs. Kenneth Dement, and assistant treasurer Mrs. Hugh Hoy.

Elected members to the board of the Symphony Guild are Mrs. Frederick Henderson, Mrs. Graeme McKenzie, and Mrs. Charles Smart. Nominating Committee chairwoman is Mrs. Roderick Dewar, with Mrs. Mackenzie, Mrs. McSorley, Mrs. Hale Giffen and Mrs. John Kenaston.

Bronco league play resumes after week's hiatus

By DOROTHY MEHEEN

THE MUSTANG-Bronco games resumed last week after a one-week vacation due to Science Camp, and there was another home run in the Bronco Division — this time by newcomer Brooks Juhring of Carmel Valley Disposal.

Bronco play began last week when Derek Rayne lost to La Playa 8-3 in a game that produced few hits. Devin Meheen pitched the win. The only hits in the game came from Rick Prieto of La Playa with a double, and Mark Fanderl, also of La Playa.

The following day, Pine Inn lost to Carmel Valley Disposal, 8-7. George Zarate was the winning pitcher, and also doubled for CVD, as did Scott Allan and Chris Biason. Bryan Langley doubled for PI. Lead hitters for CVD were Chris Biason and Chad Christensen, and for PI, Cody West.

On Saturday, La Playa defeated Pine Inn 12-5 with a lot of good hitting by both sides. Bain Smith was pitcher of record. Triples were made for La Playa off the bats of Mark Fanderl, Devin Meheen and Rick Prieto, who also doubled.

Bryan Langley and Code West picked up doubles for Pine Inn. Leading hitters were Mario Bertolucci and Bryan Langley of Pine Inn and Rick Prieto, Devin Meheen and Dennis Sketchley of La Playa. Chris Prieto of La Playa allowed only one player on base in three innings.

Pine Inn made the first triple play of the season when Chris Prieto of La Playa popped up to short-stop Mario Bertolucci, with runners on second and first. Mario then threw to second baseman Phil Fuerstner, who threw to Clas Brown at first to end the inning.

Derek Rayne then fell to Carmel Valley Disposal 7-1, with Sky Feekes winning pitcher. The only hits of the game came from Carmel Valley Disposal with Brooks Juhring's hit over left field, a double and single by Jon Shoemaker, and hits by Chris Biason.

In the field, Bret Abernathy of CVD caught a smashing line drive by Aaron Bliesner in the second, while Aaron stretched beyond average reach to catch a long fly ball, which shut down a CVD rally in the fourth.

George Zarate and Ben Jones did a great job of pitching in three innings, and Ben striking out five out of six in the sixth and seventh.

There was a great deal of Mustang and softball action last week but, unfortunately, it has gone unreported. Come on, scorekeepers, let's do a favor for all those players and turn in publicity!

One other Pinto team this year is Wooden Horse, coached by Bob Allen, Larry Biegel and Bruce Sheldon. The players are: Brian Allen, Jacob Biegel, Christopher Bleich, Stevenson Bliss, Kevin Bromfield, Casey Christensen, Darren King, Mikko Jon Magnusson, Brian O'Rourke, Robbie Sheldon, Illona Simon, Brent Sullivan, and Micky Vorobiov.

New chief at County Bank approaches job with gusto

PAT DEMORO, the new regional manager of County Bank and Trust, took over officially on June 1 but said he was so anxious to get into his new job that he started almost a week early.

"Actually, I took over yesterday (May 28)," DeMoro said. He replaces Harley Warner who resigned the position at the end of April.

DeMoro was a vice president and consumer loan administrator in Santa Cruz for County Bank before he took over his new position as senior vice president and regional manager of the Monterey Peninsula.

DeMoro said he also was on the advance team for the purchase last year of the National Bank of Carmel when County Bank and Trust — formerly called County Bank and Trust of Santa Cruz — took over the failed bank, thus opening its first offices on the Monterey Peninsula.

"We were a little naive when we came down here," DeMoro said. "I thought we would be greeted with a cooperative group from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation who would help to make it as easy as possible on the depositors. Instead, they were antagonistic and not overly concerned with the depositors but were only interested in making sure that they were taking as small a loss as possible on the insurance." DeMoro added "We are still working out some of the details of the assets."

"We definitely will be staying here on the peninsula," DeMoro said. "In fact, we are hoping to add an office in Monterey before the end of the year."

County Bank considered opening in the Santa Clara Valley but decided to expand into the Monterey Peninsula instead, DeMoro said.

"This area was so much like Santa Cruz — a small tourist-dominated community — that we decided we could provide the same service with the same quality here," he said.

Establishing County Bank here has not always been easy, DeMoro said. In Santa Cruz, where the bank was founded 115 years ago, it is well-known and has a dominant share of the market. Currently, two of the 17 bank offices are located on the peninsula — one on Dolores Street in Carmel and one at 200 Clock Tower Place at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The fate of the Bank of Carmel, DeMoro said, helped him to appreciate strong management policy.

"I would get really frustrated sometimes with all the hoops I have to go through to get a loan cleared but I really appreciate the strong checks we have now. It is very important to be careful when you are dealing with people's money," DeMoro said.

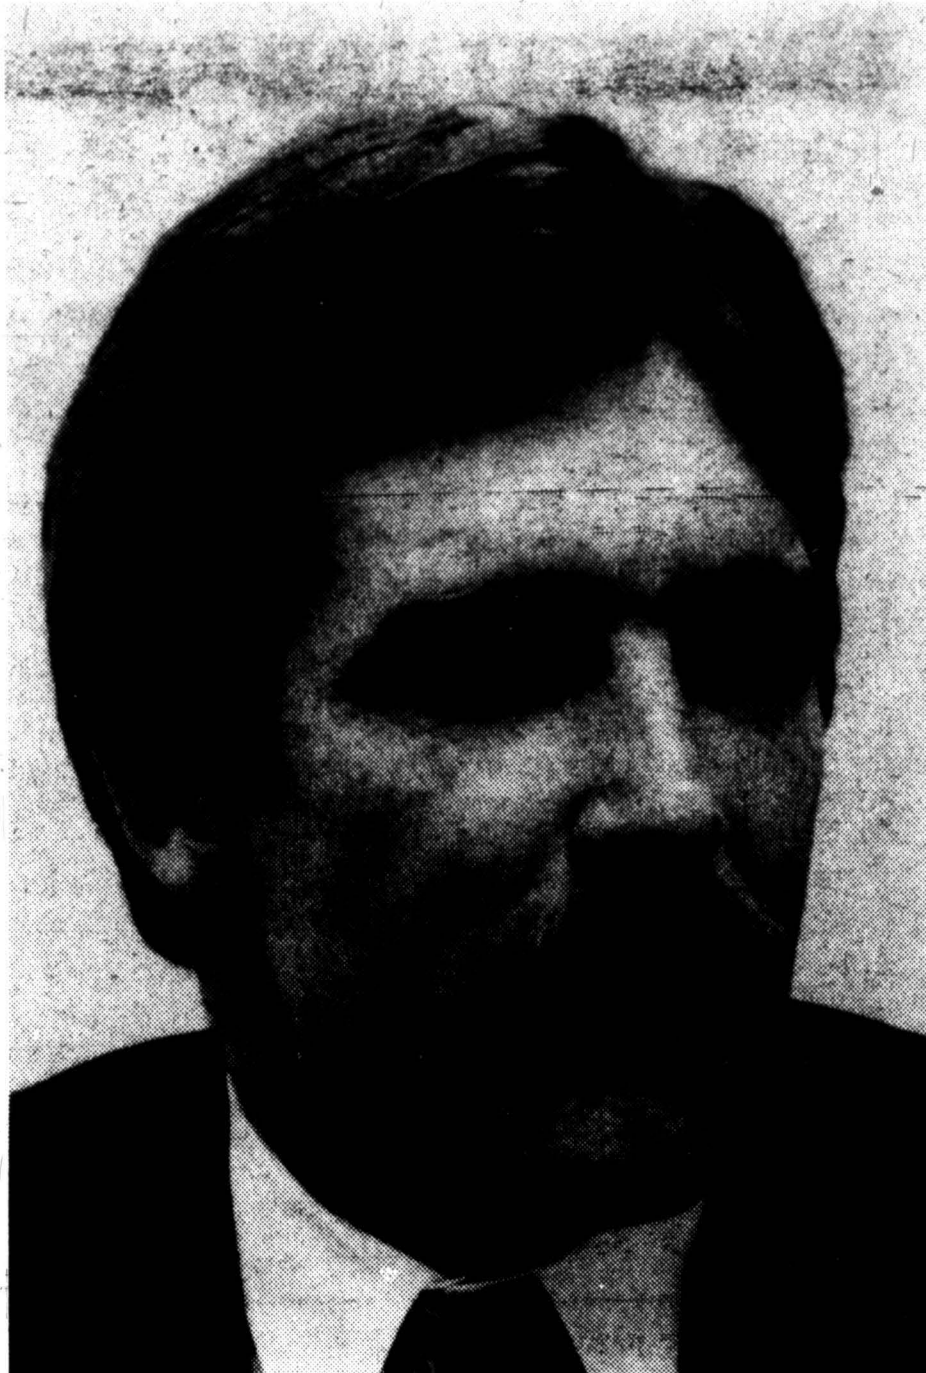

Deregulation has caused quite a few changes in the banking world, DeMoro said.

"There is nothing wrong with free enterprise — unfortunately it is not free," he said. "Other businesses are not restricted from coming into our field (banking) but we are restricted from coming into their fields." Insurance companies entering the banking industry was one example DeMoro cited.

As a consumer loan officer, DeMoro said he handled loans for any "personal, family or household needs." He looks forward in particular to one aspect of his new position.

"In my other job I was desk-bound. Now I get to go back out into the field, meet people and get involved in the community," he said.

DeMoro currently lives in Santa Cruz but is looking for a place to live in the Carmel area. He said he started to work for the County Bank and Trust 11 years ago, right after graduating from San Diego State University with a degree in economics.

WILLOW TEA ROOM RECAPTURES THE PAST

Do you wonder what life was like before the automobile, computer, television and the high-speed dentist drill?

If you can't imagine life without these and other amenities, then the Willow Tea Room Studio in The Crossroads might be the place for you to get in touch with such gentle fantasies.

Owner Don Miller said The Willow Tea Room will consist of the newly opened shop downstairs and an upstairs restaurant — due to open in the summer — both centered on a turn-of-the-century theme.

The newly opened shop on the first floor, Miller said, is a combination of "a specialty bookshop, art gallery, antique and gift shop" with items characteristic of the years from 1880 to 1910.

The fin de siecle theme reflects Miller's interest in that era — an interest he shares with his wife Joan, his partner in the Tea Room.

"Both my wife and I have been fascinated with that period for a long time," Miller said. "Though I probably have a romantic view of that time (the turn of the century), I still like the idea of the leisurely pace when we were not flooded with information and science was not the 'sacred cow' that it is today."

"They were interested in science but there still was a spiritual side. It was a focal point in history — a big turning point when people were looking toward the future with ambivalence."

The bookshop portion of the downstairs, Miller said, features books both from and about that era, including contemporary books on the personalities, plays, poetry, drama, architecture and art of the era.

The specialty, Miller said, is in illustrated children's books.

Dressing the part

SECURITY PACIFIC Bank employees in Carmel really got into their own advertising campaign last week by dressing the part. The bank invites the public to "add a dash of friendly seasoned bankers and watch us stir up a red hot banking relationship!" The art gallery features prints, posters and "some watercolors of the period," Miller said, and furnishing from the era includes both original and reproductions.

"We also are handling china from that period," Miller said.

There are present-day items done with the art nouveau style of the time, he added.

The upstairs restaurant will open sometime this summer, Miller said, and will have lunch, a tea (the meal), dinner with live music and — after dinner — a cabaret.

BUSINESS BOARD RACES THROUGH AGENDA

The Carmel Business License and Code Review Board took care of 15 applications in 20 minutes in its May 23 meeting and controversy was kept at a minimum.

Both former planning commissioner Richard Barrett and the former owner of the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, Albert Eisner, received their respective licenses for offices. Barrett, an architect, received a license for an office at Dolores Street.

Eisner and his partner Scott MacClelland received their license for headquarters for Prelude, a new monthly magazine for classical music and the arts. Prelude is due to come out in September.

CHRISTINE'S FASHIONS: The application of the new owners of the women's apparel shop on Dolores Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues was approved. Family representatives of the Wu's told the board that there would be no changes in the shop.

FOREST LODGE: Julian Bills' application for a change of ownership of an existing business was approved. Bills had purchased the motel from Gordon Clemens. Code enforcement officer Mary Jahr-Purvis' request that the fact that the motel consisted of three units with a manager's unit be included on the business license was approved.

SILVER SCISSORS: Suzanne Nivette, new owner of the beauty salon Silver Scissors, received her business license after she told the board she just plans on "carrying on" and will bring in her own clients.

THE LYNNE LUPETTI GALLERY: Artist Lynne Lupetti received her business license for an artist's working studio and gallery in the location of the old New Master's Gallery on Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln streets. Lupetti had received her land use permit the night before from the board of adjustments. Lupetti specializes in children's portraiture and was granted the use permit and license because her gallery was not a brokers-style art gallery, the proliferation of which the city is trying to maintain some control over.

ELIZABETH MODELS: Elizabeth Brown and Carolyn Goodall both received their license for a model booking agency.

CARMEL CUSTOM TAILOR ALTERATIONS: Mehmet Alim Sezenol received a license for doing alterations and tailoring in the Carmel Cleaners on Junipero Avenue.

THE HAIRPORT: Doreen Gerhart and Ric Kolle received a change of ownership for The Hairport in the Su Vecino Court on Lincoln Street. Kolle closed his Carmel Crimpers and merged his business with Gerhart, the owner of The Hairport.

FARRINGTON ART SUPPLIES: Mary Farrington was granted a license to open an art supply shop in the former location of the Sticky Wicket Books on Dolores Street. However, Farrington said later that she had decided not to open the shop after all.

HEATHER GLENN CHIROPRACTIC CENTER: Chiropractor Stanley Del Carlo received a license to open his clinic in the Heather Glenn building on Mission Street near Eighth Avenue.

WOODWORKING SHOP OPENS IN VALLEY

Steven Hershey always has wanted a woodworking shop, even when he worked on his father's farm back in Pennsylvania.

Now, after eight years as a carpenter, he decided to give his first love a try and in April opened Hershey's Fine Woodworking at 6 Paso Mediano in Carmel Valley.

"I will build furniture, cabinets, bookcases — any kind of custom woodwork that needs to be done, including repairs," Hershey said.

"I have been working as a finish carpenter and doing a lot of cabinet work for contractors like trimming out paneling, hanging cabinets, bathroom vanities and making furniture for my family," Hershey said. "I did not want to become a contractor because I could see that they did not get to do a lot of hands-on work, which is what I love."

Hershey said he also has worked as a painter, which taught him how to do finishing and painting.

As for his feelings on working with wood, Hershey summed it up: "I love it."

1887 SHOP TO CLOSE UNTIL JULY

Two quick notes and changes.

- The 1887 Shop which sells dancewear in Carmel Plaza will be shut down till July 1 when it will reopen in a "new and larger location" in one of the new shops being built in the former Bank of America spot in the Plaza, said manager Laura Converse. Don't look for her in the new shop though, she added, because she is moving down to Los Angeles to work in dance and drama education. The new manager, to go with the new shop, Converse said, will be Lilia Rathburn.

- Doran Associates, the computer services business on Lincoln Street, has a new name. Owner Michelle Heuer said that the name change to Data Concepts was made because it is a "more expansive description of what we do."

FOR YOUR CALENDAR

Judy Wolfe, director of youth, family and alcohol services for the Community Human Services Project, and Donna Stewart, community relations coordinator for Brightside ACT Center in Carmel, will be the featured speakers at the general membership meeting of the Carmel Business Association.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. June 6 in La Playa Hotel. This is in preparation for an alcohol awareness/education pilot program that will be presented in Carmel October through December 1985. The project goal is to have all segments of the Carmel community working together to reduce alcohol abuse and to increase awareness of alcohol issues.

OBITUARIES

William Chapman

Funeral services with full military honors took place May 29 at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Monterey for William G. Chapman of Carmel, who died May 24 at Community Hospital. He was 78.

Born Aug. 7, 1906 in Delano, Minn., he was a 21-year veteran of the Air Force. He served in Europe during World War II and was discharged in 1949 with the rank of captain.

Christian Scientists meet June 3

Christian Scientists' annual meeting June 3 at the Mother Church in Boston had a decidedly international tone.

Highlights of the meeting included announcement of a new church president from Edinburgh, Scotland; reports of new church activities in cities as near as Washington and as far as Kinshasa, Zaire; and announcement of Christian Science Monitor broadcasting activities in New England and Europe — along with plans for Africa, Latin America and Asia.

Unlike some recent religious conclaves around the country which have focused on reaching consensus on political and social issues, Christian Scientists focused on what they see as the essentially "spiritual mission" of the church.

But, as the meeting made clear, it's a spiritual mission which they feel has practical implications in human affairs.

Robert H. Mitchell of Edinburgh, stepping into the one-year post of church president, spoke of "the many challenges facing mankind today" which "force us to turn from material perceptions to the motivating power that is already at hand — the dynamic power of God and his Christ."

"The gospel message reminds us of Jesus' diligence in listening to the Father's prompting. Whatever the circumstance, Jesus never allowed material conditions to inhibit his demonstration of the Christ," Mitchell said.

A member of the church's five-person board of directors, Michael B. Thorneloe of London, reminded the audience of the theme of the church's worldwide satellite video conference a few months ago: "To live for all mankind."

Quoting from the writings of church founder Mary Baker Eddy ("Forget self in laboring for mankind"), Thorneloe called on members to individually examine their own thought and lives in "self-forgetful prayer for mankind."

The manager of the Christian Science Publishing Society, John H. Hoagland, Jr., brought members up to date on the church's publishing activities including its perhaps best-known publication, The Christian Science Monitor. Hoagland stated that both circulation and advertising for the Monitor rose over the past year and the Monitor now has several broadcasting activities in the United States and overseas. One of these, Monitorradio, a one-hour weekend program broadcast in cooperation with American Public Radio, now airs on 160 stations.

Nathan A. Talbot, manager of the church Committee on Publication (an information office distinct from the Publishing Society), reported that a number of medical journals and encyclopedias recently have requested articles on Christian Science. He stressed, however, that what gives life and substance to ecumenical activities and articles about the church's teachings is members' individual lives.

He spoke of recent publicity which has linked Christian healing as practiced by Christian Scientists with "child neglect." Members' century-long record of healing, their love and care for their children, Talbot said, is invaluable in breaking down stereotypes of Christian healing as ineffective at best and dangerous at worst.

"To the extent that we are willing to live in a way that encourages the spiritual growth of all mankind," said Talbot, this not only constitutes progress for Christian Scientists but supports the spiritual progress of mankind as a whole.

Thanking members and friends for their donations to the church over the past year, treasurer Donald C. Bowersock outlined contributions to drought victims in Africa, South America and the Far East.

Donations, he reported, had not only enabled the church and Publishing Society to meet day-to-day operating costs but had covered expenses relating to the December video conference and a significant number of charitable contributions to ecumenical relief organizations.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

What is it like to grow older? Tamerra Moeller, a psychologist from Philadelphia, has developed an exhibit called "What About Aging? Your Changing Senses." Through the use of mechanical devices, visitors experience common sensory effects of aging—the effect of glare on the vision of people with cataracts; the distortions of sound that come with hearing loss; the declining sensations of taste and smell. Ms. Moeller said the exhibit gives a better understanding of the elderly and suggests simple changes, such as brightly-painted curbs, to make life easier for seniors.

According to Dr. Jeffrey Blumberg of the Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging in Boston, there is no proof that vitamins, minerals or other food supplements prolong life. In fact, he says, some vitamins such as A and D, along with some minerals such as selenium, can be dangerous in large amounts for older people. Check with your own doctor about the type and amount of any vitamin supplement you intend to take.

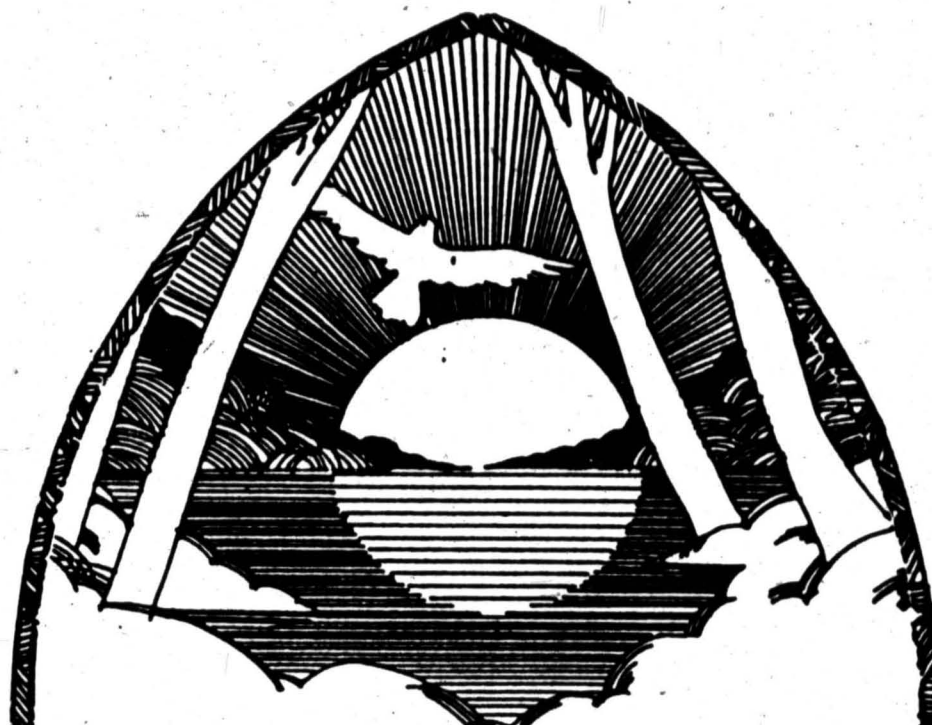

Remember When? 1930 — According to a nationwide survey taken that year, one out of every 5 Americans owned an automobile.

Latest book has TV setting

Tube poses no 'mystery' to author

By ANNE PAPINEAU

CONTRARY TO popular notion, employees of the television industry do have scruples. R. R. (Bob) Irvine is such a man.

The Carmel resident's achievements include developing those television staples, the "magazine show" and "happy talk news" formats. Irvine left the medium, he said, because conscience propelled him into the honest work of writing mystery novels.

"It's a real crap shoot — the publishing business," noted this multi-media veteran. "You become a manic/depressive. You're either very elated or very down depending on acceptance or rejection. You better damn well be sure you want to do it."

Not only is Irvine sure that writing fiction from his Carmel home is what he wants to do, his career switch has borne fruit. Irvine's eighth book, Ratings Are Murder, was published in May.

Like four of its predecessors, Ratings Are Murder features crusading television reporter Bob Christopher as its protagonist.

"Bob Christopher is verging on being too overweight to look good on camera," Irvine said of his signature character. "He's tempted by Big Macs and French fries. He believes TV is the last place the little guy can get any kind of justice."

Although he no longer works in television, the novelist remains an ardent critic. Irvine's knowledge of the business is reflected in his books, which he embroiders with true-to-life details and a vision of the video universe as he thinks it ought to be.

"I'm a great television watcher," Irvine noted. "The local news is so naive. I take notes on what is left out of a news story. Every night they omit a who, what, where or when. It's really tough with the small stations."

"Nobody asks follow-up questions on television. These reporters must be sturried. They never ask the question, 'why?' I don't think serious journalists can be in it (television)."

But for more than a decade this UC Berkeley graduate and former newspaper

CARMEL RESIDENT R. R. Irvine, writer of mystery novels and critic of television, has set his latest work, Ratings Are Murder, within a television framework. It is Irvine's editor helped plot the programs aired by the ubiquitous "one eye."

"I wanted to be a writer always. I guess I was influenced by Hemingway," Irvine

'I would return to television only if forced by financial need. Stealing money, that's what writing for television is.'

observed. "I got fascinated by journalism." In the early 1960s, Irvine worked for fourth book to feature crusading television news reporter Bob Christopher as its protagonist.

Southern California dailies.

"I was assistant city editor of the Hollywood Citizen-News and it bored me. I remember the day Kennedy was assassinated. We turned on the TV to see what was going on. That's when I decided to go into television."

IRVINE'S CREDITS include work as a writer and producer for independent Channel 5 in Los Angeles.

"Writer" is a misnomer in TV, in a sense," he quipped.

1966-68 found Irvine serving as news director of CBS-owned radio station KNX, a post he called "exciting because I got to hire a lot of people and create a news department."

By the late 1960s Irvine had returned to television where he led the "Eyewitness News" program on ABC-affiliated Channel 7 in Los Angeles.

"It's still on my conscience," Irvine said of his tenure with Eyewitness News. "That's the 'happy news' program. It was very deliberate. The media consultants tell you to insert humor. The news ceases to become journalism. It's just show business."

In Los Angeles Irvine also produced Ralph Story's AM on ABC, the forerunner of Good Morning America. He then became a writer of CBS-TV's Two on the Town, a two-anchor magazine show he called "an instant success."

"My great talent on Two on the Town was that I wrote ad libs. Asides on the newscasts are all scripted. You can't trust your news people to ad lib."

ARTS & LEISURE

Such is the well of television experience from which Irvine draws when he creates such mystery novels as Freeze Frame, Jump Cut, Horizontal Hold and The Face Out Front.

"I write what I want to write about in an entertaining way and I try to find kindred spirits," he said. "I talk about television through Bob Christopher."

"Ratings Are Murder is populated by

Walter White and company plan two evenings of dance

MONTEREY BAY area dance artist Walter White, who toured with the Katt Knapp Jazz and Tandy Beal Dance companies, will be joined by a gathering of local talent in concert Friday and Saturday, June 7-8.

Walter White Very Alive in Concert, presented at 8 both evenings in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater, marks the first time White has performed and directed since

Aces and Deuces in fall 1983. He will be joined in concert by his wife, Deborah, a dance instructor with the Monterey Parks and Recreation Department and Monterey Peninsula College.

Contributing original music will be Jim Chappell. A trio of White's students will also dance. Marrit Brook-Kotlow, Tafari Lindemann and Tamara Monosoff appear in Earth Beats and Game Field.

A FOUNDING member of the Tandy Beal Dance Company, Walter White returns to his Monterey Bay area roots to present two evenings of dance in the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre. White is joined in concert by a trio of students and his wife, Deborah White, who teaches dance at MPC and the Monterey Parks and Recreation Department.

A TRIO of Walter White's dance students will perform in concert Friday and Saturday, June 7-8. They are, from left, Tafari Lindemann, a Carmel High School graduate;

Tamara Monosoff, who has also danced with Ballet Fantasque; and Marrit Brook-Kotlow, a senior at Carmel High School.

Local dancers to present eclectic evenings at MPC

Walter White received a bachelor's degree in dance from the University of California at Santa Cruz and his M.F.A. degree in dance from the University of Utah. He completed a two-year teaching residency at Kelvin Grove College in Brisbane, Australia, and is now a professor of dance at MPC.

In addition to dancing with the Tandy Beal and Pat Knapp companies, White appeared locally with Joy Berta, who is currently performing in the San Francisco area.

White's style can be described as dance/theater. In Various Eccentricities, he makes imaginative use of simple props. His comedic talents come to the fore in Boxer.

These concerts mark the first time White has appeared with his wife, Deborah. She received a bachelor's degree in dance from Steven's College, performed professionally with Kat Knapp Jazz Dance in Los Angeles and choreographed musical theater in Australia. The duo's featured numbers include Louie, Louie, Louie, three numbers worked to the beat of Louie Armstrong standards, and Edges of Illusions, a piece White previously danced with Janet Butler.

Original music is contributed by Jim Chappell, who has composed pieces for dance productions in Atlanta and Nashville, and accompanied performances of dance departments at Vanderbilt, UCLA, UC Santa Cruz and Monterey Peninsula College. Chappell will perform solo works in addition to original works he composed especially for these dances.

General admission is $7, $6 for students and senior citizens. Tickets can be purchased in advance at Dance Center of London, Seventh Avenue and Dolores Street, Carmel; Sprouse Reitz, 588 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove; and in Monterey at Monterey Peninsula College Dance Studio; Monterey Dance Workshop, 599 Tyler St. and the Monterey Parks and Recreation Department office, 546 Dutra St., behind Colton Hall.

The Monterey Peninsula College Theater is at 980 Fremont Blvd., Monterey. For additional information, call 375-7270.

College comedies, dramas ...

Drama season unveiled

FOUR COMEDIES — a drama, a musical and a fantasy play — will be staged by the Monterey Peninsula College Players during the 1985-86 season, set to begin July 11 and continue through May 31 of next year.

Season tickets for the seven shows are now on sale for as little as 65 percent of the cost for individual shows. Individual season tickets cost $15. Admission to individual shows is $6. Discounts multiply with the purchase of additional season tickets, making them especially economical for families or groups of friends.

Season ticket holders also receive a $1.50 discount on two York School theater productions and on the four student productions staged each year in the small "SRO" theater on campus.

Scheduled for the main stage beginning July 11 is Moss Hart's Light Up the Sky, directed by Jerry De Bono. The show casts nine men and four women in a show biz comedy about an acting company grappling with the experience of unexpected fame.

The show will run for three weekends through July 27.

Starting Aug. 15 is the Shakespearean classic A Comedy of Errors, given a decisively contemporary flair by director James Dunn. Peninsula theater-goers will remember Dunn for his "high tech" interpretation of A Midsummer Night's Dream during the 1983 season and for his past productions of The Taming of the Shrew in both modern and wild west versions.

Dunn has served as guest director for the American Conservatory Theater, the Pacific Conservatory of the Performing Arts and San Diego's Globe Theatre. He was artistic director of the California Shakespeare Festival in the '60s, artistic director of the California Actors Theatre in the '70s and currently heads the drama department at the College of Marin.

Dunn, characteristically inventive in his directing, is doing A Comedy of Errors "circus style" with a beach and boardwalk set design. The story line involves the twisted fates of two sets of identical twins. The show will run through Aug. 31.

Mister Roberts will be staged from Oct. 17-Nov. 2. The show will be directed by MPC Drama Department Chairman Peter De Bono, whose past directing credits include Cal On a Hot

Slavic culture celebrated

The Pancultural Orchestra and ethnic singing and dance groups of the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center will perform a program of the ethnic music of Eastern Europe. These sounds of Slavic music can be heard in the Sister Carlotta Performing Arts Center at Santa Catalina School, Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey at 7 p.m. on Saturday, June 8.

The orchestra was established late last September as part of the World Religions and Cultures Program of the Defense Language Institute under the guidance of Col. Seymour Moskowitz. It is composed of D.L.I. students from various language departments. Joining these musicians will be other military and civilian personnel who represent the staff, faculty, family members and friends of D.L.I.

According to Commandant of D.L.I., Col. David A. McNeerney, "D.L.I. is in the language teaching business. But music is the international language par excellence. It provides us with the means of insight into the soul of a people. It speaks to all humanity on a positive basis."

The music director and conductor of the Pancultural Orchestra is Theodore Gargiulo, active on the peninsula in the world of music as a freelance musician and artist. He has recently concluded a tour of Canada conducting full symphony orchestras which underscored the silent film classic Napoleon. Maestro Gargiulo is music director of "Music in the Museum" Chamber Series at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and continues as organist and director of music for the Chaplains Section both at the Presidio of Monterey and

Fort Ord.

The featured guest artist soloist Alex Holodiloff of Pacific Grove. He will interpret Kontchak's Aria from Prince Igor by Borodin. Included in the orchestral program will be works by Dvorak, Brahms, Tchaikovsky and Enesco.

Proceeds from the program will go to local charities. Ethnic displays and food will be sold. The project is sponsored by the Polish-American Club of the Monterey Peninsula.

MUSIC CORNER

BY JOANNA TORRA

Early music grows in appeal

EARLY MUSIC, once considered the pastime of musicologists and other cranks, has now attained a popularity that challenges the popularity of music on the other side of the magical date of 1750.

The date — that of J.S. Bach's death — is highly arguable as the end of old music and the beginning of modernity, but we are stuck with it for now.

When Wanda Landowska and the Dolmetsch family began, early in this century, to explore the instruments as well as the music of the pre-Bach era, they set in motion something which no one could have predicted and which has not yet ceased.

Through the exploration of the instruments, we began to learn about the physical sound of the music — not just the pitches and rhythms, although we learned a lot there, too.

The first harpsichords reproduced took advantage of the technological advances of the piano. That lasted until around 20 years ago, when some so-called purists discovered that historical copies of the instruments sounded better than the technologically "improved" models.

Most harpsichordists who came to maturity during that period have made more or less graceful retreats from their iron-clad, pedal-laden instruments, in favor of lighter frames and hand stops. Now the arguments are not harpsichord vs. piano, but French double vs. Flemish, Ruckers vs. Taskin, virginals vs. harpsichord. In the midst of all this, the clavichord and the fortepiano also were rediscovered.

Although recorders have been popular as a child's instrument for a long time, it took the likes of Bernard Krainis, Hans-Martin Linde and Franz Breuggen to demonstrate to us that this was no toy.

One of the first groups in the United States to show us the rich joys of even earlier music was Noah Greenberg's Pro Musica Antiqua. Performing under a variety of names, they appeared at Fort Tryon Park in New York City, but they soon got so popular they had to move downtown. The group did not survive Greenberg's death by many years, although it spawned many other groups.

Largely by way of that original group, we learned the spiritual sound of the portative organ and the unusual sounds of early strings such as the rebec and fiedel. We learned the raucous sound of the renaissance band with shawms and sackbuts.

The renaissance recorder turned out to be quite different from the baroque. There were bright, piercing clarino trumpets; hunting horns without valves; the sweet-voiced dulcian; the rackets in the sub-basement. Our whole sound concept underwent great changes.

As musicians learned to play these instruments in tune (some early records gave very distorted ideas of the sounds that were supposedly authentic), additional discoveries were made. The music not only sounded better on the instruments for which it was written, but was easier to play.

INVESTIGATION of the structure of the early instruments reminded us also that A=440 c/s was not immutable. A number of groups now play at what they term "baroque" pitch, but there was nothing immutable about baroque pitch either.

It was certainly lower than our pitch, although instruments have been found from the renaissance whose A was considerably higher than ours. Many harpsichords and small organs now have transposing keyboards, with A at 440 or 415 c/s. The lower pitch makes sopranos happy, but basses are not always so thrilled.

Research has produced information about earlier singing styles, and singers utilizing these styles are no longer considered esoteric. There are, in fact, a large number of singers well-versed in baroque style, and a growing number capable in renaissance style.

Dance historians are reconstructing early dances to give us more authentic tempos and improve our phrasing.

Much of this activity has taken place in the last 30 years. The motion started by Landowska and Dolmetsch has steadily gained in momentum. Music students are now expected to be knowledgeable in performance practice, to understand something about the phrasing, rhythm, articulation and sound of all the music they encounter.

Certainly, part of the attraction of early music is its human scale. It was functional, whether religious or secular. The latter was dance music or vocal music, and it was meant to be used. It was emotional, it was social, and it was accessible. And it still is.

New flute concerto aired

A NEW flute concerto commissioned by Carmel resident Kathryn Lewis will have its premiere broadcast on the Central Coast at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 8 during a broadcast of the Chicago Symphony on KBOQ-FM 93.

Morton Gould's flute concerto was composed for Donald Peck, the principal flutist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, at the request of Kathryn Lewis of Carmel. Lewis met Donald Peck through her association with the Carmel Bach Festival. She died at age 86 just two weeks before the concerto had its world premiere in Chicago.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY JANE WILGRESS

In memoriam: Loren L. Ryder

I AM writing in sadness at the passing of Loren Ryder of Monterey, husband of Isabel Ryder who has been a frequenter and supporter of the Cherry Foundation for a long time, and a member of the board of directors for the past three years.

Many people no doubt read last week of Loren Ryder's extraordinarily distinguished career in the field of sound engineering. Men such as he set one thinking about greatness, about the miracles brought into being by human thought and how the creative thinking, whether in art or science, is so often done by those who appear to take up little room in the world — by the self-contained and devoted who seek quietly to serve in their field. To such as these, the muses, the saints and the guardians of science seem ready to reveal their secrets in some mysterious and sometimes earth-shaking exchange.

Loren's friendly, sociable presence will be greatly missed. Isabel Ryder's wisdom, wit and goodwill have endeared her forever to all those who have met her here in classes and at meetings and parties. I feel I can write not only for myself but for all of us at Carl Cherry Foundation when saying that we send love and sympathy to her and to her daughters and their families in a very great loss.

***

Last week's column gave June 31, not May 31, as starting date for Jaya Karls' yoga class. There is no such date as June 31, and Jaya has postponed the first session until June 7 anyway — so there is still time to join the class.

High school jazzologists gear up for competition

THE DRUMS belonging to late jazz master Shelly Manne will be presented to the Monterey Jazz Festival jazz education fund during the finals competition and awards ceremony of the 15th Annual California High School Jazz Festival, Friday through Sunday, June 7, 8 and 9.

Manne's widow elected to award the drums to the festival in light of the late drummer's strong commitment to jazz education and his esteem for and involvement with festival efforts in that area. Bassist Monty Budwig, who worked with Manne in various groups, is scheduled to make the presentation Saturday, June 8, at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

The 10 big bands selected to compete in this year's competition include: Aptos High School, Don Keller, director; Homestead High School, Rory Snyder, director; Monterey High School, Robby Stange, director; San Marin High School, Bob Steele, director; McLane High School, Bob Russell, director; Berkeley High School, Charles Hamilton, director; Bonita High School, Robin Snyder, director; Amador Valley High School, Ted Newton, director; South San Francisco High School, Mike Galisatus, director; and Eagle Rock High School, John Rinaldo, director.

The weekend competition kicks off at 8 p.m. Friday June 7 with a free concert open to the public. The concert will feature competition judges: Nick Ceroli, drums; Mundell Lowe, guitar; Monty Budwig, bass; Joyce Collins, piano; Bill Berry, trumpet; George Bohanon, trombone; Plas Johnson, Gary Foster and Jack Nimitz, saxes.

On Saturday, June 8, big band and combo competition gets underway at 9 a.m. and runs until 11:30 a.m. Big band competition resumes at 1 p.m. and runs until 3:30 p.m. At 4 p.m., the three big band finalists and the winning combo will be announced.

From 2:30 p.m. until 3 p.m., Joyce Collins, Nick Ceroli and Monty Budwig will conduct a clinic open to all students not otherwise scheduled at that time.

From 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, the three finalists have their last opportunity to impress the judges and at 9 p.m., the winning big band and outstanding soloists will be announced. It is at this time that Shelly Manne's drums will be presented. The winning big band and combos and outstanding soloists each receive a trophy.

The competition wraps up Sunday with individual auditions for the California High School All Star Jazz Ensemble from 10 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Those selected as members of that ensemble will spend a week before the Monterey Jazz Festival rehearsing with professional musicians and will then perform Sunday afternoon at the festival.

Junior college schedules summer registration

Registration for the Monterey Peninsula College summer session will continue through Wednesday, June 12 in the Student Services Building. Classes begin June 17 and run for six-week and eight-week sessions.

Registration office hours are 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday.

Some 200 main campus classes will be offered this summer in all of the regular MPC academic disciplines, covering the spectrum of liberal arts and vocational courses. In addition to main campus classes, a variety of subjects will be offered through MPC Fort Ord campus.

Classes at Fort Ord begin July 8 with registration scheduled for June 24-27 and July 1-3 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., and for June 28 and July 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Registration at Fort Ord takes place in Building 1024 on Division Hill Road.

MPC supplements its regular curriculum with a wide selection of classes and workshops offered through the Community Services Division on campus. These courses are non-credit and are offered on a fee-supported basis. They normally are shorter in duration than regular classes and are targeted toward specific audiences.

Course fees range from $5 to $150, depending on the nature and duration of the course. Eight of the courses are specifically for children, including "Magic as a Hobby," "Adventures for the Young Gourmet," and "Photographic Fun and Games."

Schedules and course descriptions for MPC classes and workshops are available in the MPC Student Services Building and in libraries around the peninsula. For specific course information or career guidance, contact the MPC Counseling Office at 646-4020.

Summer reading club invites participation

Summer is almost here and that means a busy time at the Monterey County libraries. All local county library branches will participate in a reading game called "Reader's Pick and Choose."

This year's reading club is a little different. It's a game, with playing cards and a spinning wheel. By design, it leads readers of all ages to new discoveries in the wide variety of reading experiences available through the library. Players may find whole new areas of reading pleasure, pursuing paths they had never considered before.

Anyone who can read can play the game. The game starts on June 17, and runs to July 31. Call or visit your local branch of the Monterey County Library to find out about the games. County libraries participating include Big Sur, 667-2537 and Carmel Valley, 659-2377.

Season discounts, varied fare offered theater buffs

Tin Roof, Morning's at Seven, True West and Absurd Person Singular.

Casting 19 men and one woman, Mister Roberts is a rowdy realistic saga about a group of American sailors aboard a Navy cargo vessel in the Pacific. Praising MPC's stage as the most technically versatile on the peninsula, De Bono plans to have an entire ship built on stage for the set.

Those with a taste for avant-garde theater will appreciate the inclusion of Jumpers in this season's theatrical fare. Written by Tom Stoppard, the play is an intellectual comedy about a philosophy professor whose lofty preoccupations with moral questions are repeatedly derailed by a murder investigation and the excitations caused by his beautiful, young wife.

Directing the play is MPC Drama Instructor Conrad Selvig, who acted with the London Fringe Theatre Circuit from 1973-74 and performed with a number of pantomime groups in Amsterdam. Locally he is known for lead roles in True West and American Blues and for his directing of Alice in Blunderland, All Night Long and Story Theater.

The MPC Players will bring in the new year with Peter Shaffer's 1985 Academy Award-winning drama Amadeus. This theatrical tour de force pits the genius of the young Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart against the talented but relatively mediocre Antonio Salieri, the composer-in-residence at the court of the Austrian emperor Joseph II. Critically acclaimed for its power and complexity, the play explores the nature of genius, virtue, God, envy, hatred and madness. The MPC production will be directed by Peter De Bono and will run from March 13-29.

Providing lighthearted contrast to the levity of Amadeus will be The Revenge of the Space Panders, a fantasy adventure whose plot spins off the fanciful idea that time can be controlled by a two-speed clock. Once the characters get time to stop and the earth to stand still, they are able to catapult themselves into Crestview, Fourth World in the Goolagong System which is guarded by the Great Space Panders. The show will be directed by Conrad Selvig with performances scheduled from April 4-13.

MPC will close its season with Damon Runyan's Guys and Dolls which is scheduled to run from May 15-31, 1986. Dubbed a "musical fable of Broadway," Guys and Dolls is described by Frank Loesser in American Musical Theater as a "vibrant, pulsating, and human portrait of the world of Broadway — of big- and little-shot gamblers and Salvation Army proselytizers, of nightclub entertainers and a sundry variety of jerks and eccentrics."

According to Andrew Craig, theater manager for MPC for the past 15 years, a season of variety plays would not be possible without the financial leverage derived from season tickets.

Theater patrons are also reminded that two free season tickets are available with a tax-deductible donation of $50 to the MPC Drama Department.

For the season ticket brochure and ticket order form, contact Craig through the MPC Drama Department, 646-4213. Or send a written inquiry to Monterey Peninsula College, Drama Department, attention: Andrew Craig, 980 Fremont St., Monterey, 93940.

Carmel author composes TV-grounded mysteries

villainous television executives. News reporters are battling to get the news on the way it should be reported, but management is trying to suppress certain stories."

THOSE YEARS in television taught Irvine to write with a literary equivalent of the "hook" employed in broadcasting. His plots "hook" the audience's attention.

"In Horizontal Hold the anchorman explodes on page one. When I went back to visit Channel 7 I saw someone on the lot that I thought was dead. Well, I'd killed him in Horizontal Hold."

Twice nominated for the Edgar Allen Poe award by the Mystery Writers of America, Irvine said he can hardly help but inject a humorous twist into his video-steeped mysteries.

"I found as I began to write, humor crept in. People are more accepting of your views if they're couched in humor. Imagine explaining to a Martian what Dallas or Dynasty is about. It's hysterical."

'I was assistant city editor of the Hollywood Citizen-News and it bored me. I remember the day Kennedy was assassinated. We turned on the TV to see what was going on. That's when I decided to go into television.'

Since "being consistent is what makes you a writer," Irvine strives to maintain a five-hour writing quota each day. "I have a schedule which I keep on the wall. It's too easy in Carmel to wander off."

The mystery writer has resided in Carmel with his wife "for one year and two months. Another three months and I'm a longtime resident. Tell anybody from La La Land

(L.A.) you live in Carmel and they say, 'I envy you.' Carmel is better than I'd thought it would be. The air is clean and I love the climate."

Irvine professes to "love reading and eating scones at the Tuck Box. I intend to set a novel on the peninsula."

"I love animals. The Devil's Breath is a save-the-animals book. I find hunting parties obnoxious. There used to be a television show that showed hunters killing animals. In my book the hunters awaken the Indian god and he wreaks vengeance. Each man dies the way he most fears."

R.R. (Bob) Irvine, co-creator of several popular television program formats, now devotes his days to writing mystery novels in Carmel. (Photograph by Mike Gardner).

Carmel-by-the-Sea now seems light years away from the network media consultants and scripted ad libs Irvine once knew.

"I'm doing exactly what I want to do, which few people can say," Irvine said. "I would return to television only if forced by financial need. Stealing money, that's what writing for television is."

Mystery fans can meet Bob Irvine on Saturday, June 8 at The Book Room in Su Vecino Court, Carmel. An autograph party for Ratings Are Murder is planned from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Western Stage promotes its 11th year with season ticket bonuses

The Western Stage offers discounts of up to $3 per ticket to groups of 25 or more for this season's three musicals.

Groups of 25 to 49 can receive a $1 discount, with 50 to 99 receiving a $2 discount. Groups numbering more than 100 receive a savings of $3 per ticket. Groups should make arrangements by calling the Western Stage box office, 375-2111.

The musicals will be presented at the Performing Arts Complex on the Hartnell College campus in Salinas, beginning with The 1940s Radio Hour on June 21.

Directed by Gerry Larson, it features the sounds of the Big Band era, conducted on stage by "Zoots Doubleman (Stephen Tosh) and his orchestra." Additional dates are June 22, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30 and July 2, 3, 5, and 6 at 8 p.m., with a 2 p.m. matinee on June 23.

Opening July 18 is Grease, the musical celebration of rock and roll. Directed and choreographed by Lorenzo Aragon, it also plays July 19, 20, 25, 26, 27, 28, 31 and Aug. 1, 2, and 3 at 8 p.m., with a matinee on July 21.

The community joins with the resident acting company to present the final musical of the season, Gypsy. Bob Waldo, who directed last year's production of The Sound of Music, returns to stage Gypsy. It opens Aug. 9, with other evening performances set for Aug. 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 21, 22, 23 and 24, and a 2 p.m. matinee on Aug. 18.

Discount rates on tickets for plays presented on the Repertory Stage are also available. The season opens with Artichoke to be joined by Life With Father, Strider, The Gin Game and Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale through Aug. 24.

Fashions promote art

A FASHION show featuring international designers will be presented in an Italian atmosphere on Saturday afternoon, June 15 in Ferrante's at the Monterey Sheraton.

A benefit for Art Commission programs staged at the Monterey Conference Center, the event is presented by the Sheraton, with styles provided by Koko Collections of Monterey.

During the 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. event, guests will be treated to an array of Italian desserts, wines, espresso and edible table decorations. Fashions will focus on international casual wear for Monterey Peninsula summers.

Escorting models will be local artists whose work is represented in the Conference Center collection — Barry Masteller of Pacific Grove, Barclay Ferguson of Carmel, Dick Crispo of Salinas — in addition to the Sheraton's own Chef Paul Gelose.

The Art Commission raises funds for the purchase of art works exhibited at the Conference Center. Since it came into being in 1975 before completion of the center, the commission has raised more than $300,000 through special events, grants and private donations and has purchased 66 art works for the city's collection.

Commentator for the fashion show will be Jan Mariani, professional modeling and seminar instructor. Models will include Robin Maurice, public relations director for the Monterey County SPCA; Heidi McRae, San Francisco graphic designer; Inez Isumi, professional model and airline stewardess; Michelle Pheasant, Monterey designer; Barbara Mortensen, fashion sales professional; Barbara Delacroix, professional model; and Vhea Knubis, student at Pacific Grove High School.

Tickets are $20 per person. Further information and reservations can be obtained by calling the Monterey Conference Center, 646-3770.

Farmers' Market returns to MPC

Monterey Peninsula College will begin its weekly Farmers' Market at 1 p.m. Thursday, June 6 in the lower part of parking lot A. The lot is parallel to Fremont Boulevard off Via Lavandera and Fishnet Road, Monterey. Approximately 25 stands will be set up to sell seasonal vegetables, fruits, flowers, eggs, honey, nuts and more. Farmers come largely from the Monterey Bay area, but some will travel from as far away as Bakersfield to sell high quality agricultural products. No second grade products are permitted in the market.

The market involves members of a farmers' cooperative who travel to various locations in the Monterey, Salinas and Santa Cruz areas each week. All produce has been personally grown by the sellers and is usually picked the day before the sale. No gases or waxes are used, and many of the farmers use natural growing techniques.

The MPC Farmers' Market will run each Thursday through the summer and fall from 1 p.m. until dusk. Visitors to the MPC campus are required to display a current parking permit or purchase a 25-cent ticket from one of the parking lot ticket dispensers.

SAN FRANCISCO artist Elizabeth Eve Shapiro depicts city scenes in her new exhibit which runs through June 22 at the Pacific Grove Art Center. The center is at 568 Light-

"BANDIT BAND & ROY MCCOY"

Hanson Galleries/Carmel proudly announces the exclusive representation of the works of Colleen Ross, one of America's most sensational new artists. Ms. Ross's paintings burst with vivid enthusiastic colors, but her women's eyes tell the true story: Under all the bright imagery lies a sense of something far more mysterious.

Dual exhibition opens

INDIVIDUAL artists and their varied styles are represented in a dual show to open Saturday, June 8 at the Zantman Art Galleries. Works by Marilyn Simandle and Miles Metzger will be highlighted during the opening reception from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Zantman Galleries, Sixth Avenue and Mission Street, Carmel.

A native of Toledo, Ohio, Simandle has pursued drawing since age six.

CARVED OF native California soapstone, American Heritage is among the works by Miles Metzger featured in a new show at the Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel.

"If anyone is to become a painter, one must become good at drawing. A painting is never any better than the drawing that precedes it," Simandle said. The watercolorist takes her sketchbook with her, in the belief that painting on location produces the best finished design.

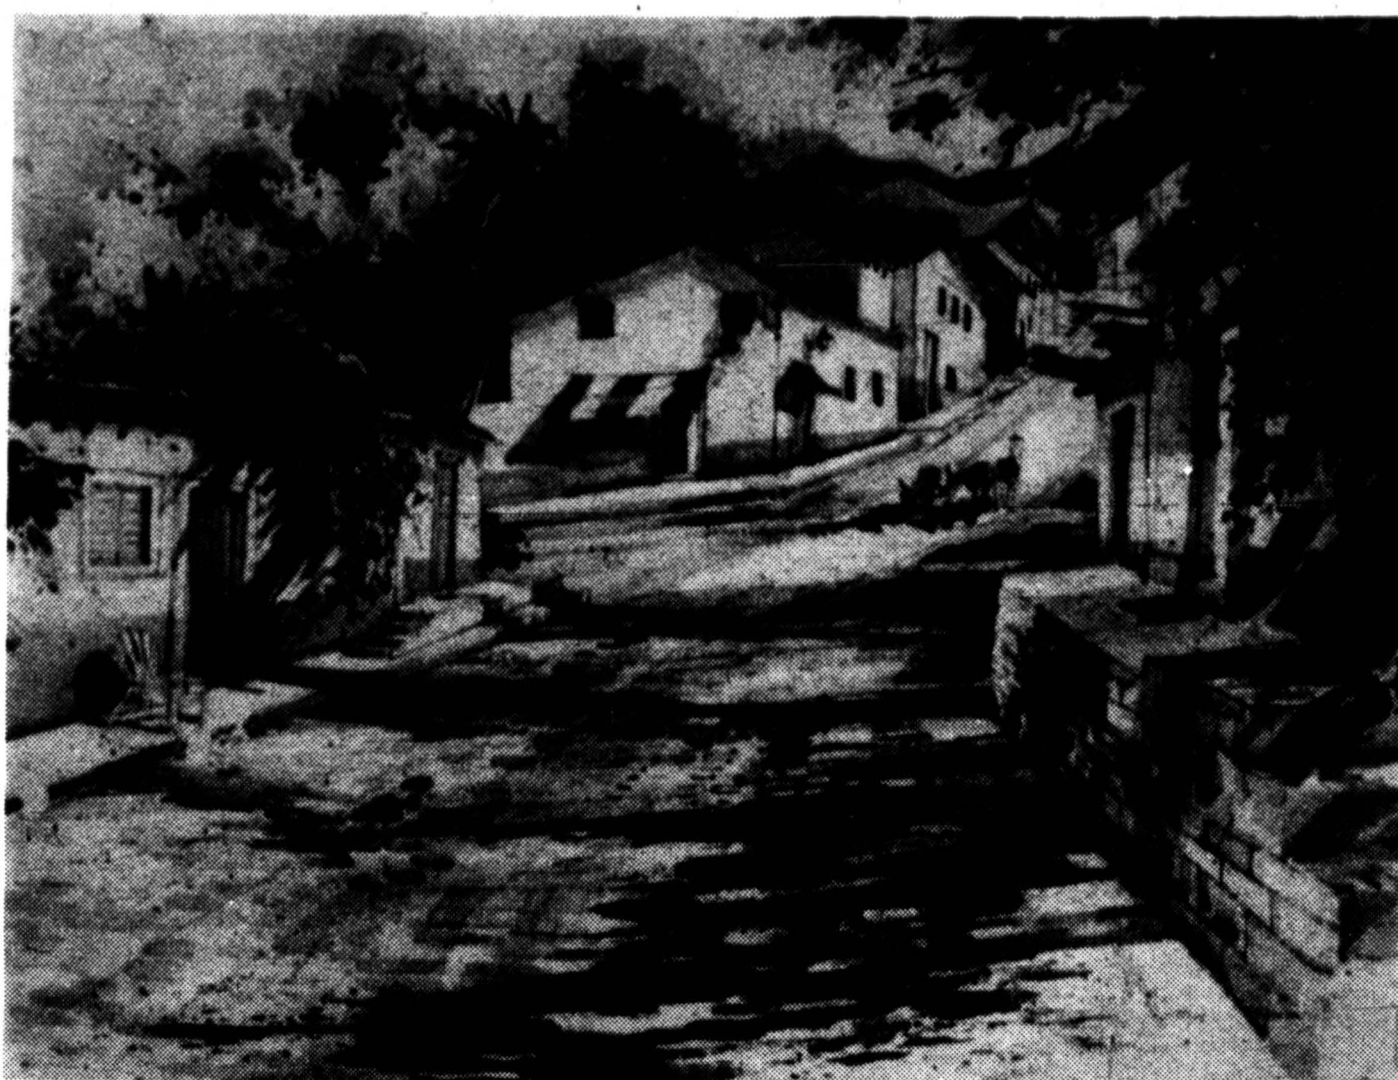

She is a member of Western Artists and has had one-woman shows along the West Coast, as well as in Hawaii and Louisiana.

A native of the California Sierra Nevada foothills, Miles Metzger developed a strong interest in the earth and its minerals through the influence of his father, a mining engineer. Metzger majored in art at Denver University and continued his education at the Instituto de Allende in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico.

The artist's sculptures embrace the old traditions of the Italian masters, but are executed in stone that Metzger collects in the Mother Lode country. He has converted a historic train depot into his stone carving plant and sculpture studio, and there he leads a crew of 10 apprentice sculptors.

Working chiefly in steatite (soapstone), Metzger designs objects and creatures of many sizes, bringing out in each the rich browns, blues, greens, greys and beige of the native mineral. He has had private shows in New York, Ohio, Hawaii and Alaska, in addition to the West Coast.

The Zantman Art Galleries are open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. For more information about this exhibit, call 624-8314.

PUERTA VALLARTA, a 30-by-40-inch watercolor by Marilyn Simandle, is among her new works exhibited at the Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel. Simandle's paintings will be featured with a show of sculpture by Miles Metzger.

Photographers chart Point Lobos

It will take place Saturday, June 15, as part of MPC's continuing photographic workshops series for spring/summer '85.

James has been a serious photographer of the Monterey Peninsula for the past 10 years, and in addition to Life magazine, has had work published in the Time-Life Photography Series, Leica and Nikon Photography International. He works in all formats and is especially interested in rock formations.

Cost of the Point Lobos workshop is $38 and includes a picnic lunch at the shooting site. For details of the day's itinerary and the registration procedures, contact Photographic Workshop Series Director Roger Premier through the MPC Business Division, 646-4071, or call the MPC public information office, 646-4063.

Chinese watercolors featured at gallery

Watercolors by three artists from the People's Republic of China are shown at Gallery Artique in Carmel.

The new paintings exhibit meticulous brushwork and the gentle colors of soft blues, shades of grey, black and white. The subjects include canals, bridges, ancient pagodas and graceful gardens.

The artistic trio, S.M. Liu, P.L. Ma and G.L. Sun, have been invited to become members of the prestigious watercolor society in Suzhou, a city in the Republic of China. This watercolor society dates to the Ming dynasty.

Suzhou is often called Venice of the Orient because of its similarity to that Italian city. Canals wind through Suzhou, transporting both people and cargo.

The paintings were brought to the United States with the special permission of the Chinese government by the owners of Gallery Artique. Gallery Artique is in Bonny-mead Court, Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues, Carmel. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. For more information, call 625-3920.

SECTION 9. AMENDMENTS MADE TO THE UNIFORM FIRE CODE.

The Uniform Fire Code is amended and changed in the following respects:

(a) Add: Section 2.303(c). In the event that any of the publications listed in Sections 2.303(a) and 2.303(b) are replaced, amended, or modified, the latest publication shall apply.

(b) Add: Article 10, Division V, Section 10.501. In high and extreme fire hazard areas, as defined by the California Department of Forestry, roof construction shall be of fire-retardant materials as defined in the Uniform Building Code Section 3203(e) 1-10, excluding 3203(e) 11, or as approved by the fire chief. This shall apply to all new construction as well as replacement of existing roofs when such replacement affects more than 25% of the existing roof. Until a site specific map has been prepared, the extent and location of these areas for individual parcels shall be determined by a joint site inspection by planning staff and fire district personnel. Vegetation removal will not be allowed as a means of removing high or extreme fire hazard designation from an entire parcel.

(c) Section 10.309, Paragraphs a, b, c, d, e, f, and g are amended as follows:

(a) WHERE REQUIRED. In addition to the requirements of the Uniform Building Code, Chapter 38, an automatic fire extinguishing system shall be installed in all buildings or structures, except agricultural buildings which shall be exempt, including residential structures, hereafter constructed or moved into the district, regardless of area separations or type of construction when such buildings or structures are:

1. Three (3) or more stories in height, including basements, garages, cellars, and mezzanines, or;

2. More than thirty (30) feet above grade at any point, or;

3. Five thousand (5,000) square feet or more of gross floor area. Contiguous buildings or structures such as shopping centers shall be considered as one building where internally linked by common walls. Buildings subsequently constructed contiguous to other buildings or structures using common walls shall be considered one building requiring compliance of both buildings when exceeding 4,999 square feet. Type V buildings or structures separated by less than ten (10) feet shall be considered as one building or structure, or;

4. Parking garages five thousand (5,000) square feet or more in floor area, or;

5. Bowling alleys, or;

6. Drinking or dining establishments four thousand (4,000) square feet or more in floor area, or;

(c) Automatic fire extinguishing systems shall be installed and maintained at the owner's expense.

(d) Where access for fire apparatus and equipment is unduly difficult to any building or structure not otherwise required to be protected by an automatic fire extinguishing system, the installation of an automatic fire extinguishing system shall be required.

(e) Where an existing building or structure is not protected by an automatic fire extinguishing system, but would otherwise be required to be protected if built as a new building its use will be allowed to continue until such time any structural change takes place which modifies, alters, or affects, any bearing wall or similar structure assembly at which time it shall be made to conform to the provisions of this code. This shall not apply to single or two-family dwellings.

(f) Section 10.310 is amended to read:

When serving more than 50 sprinklers, automatic sprinkler systems shall be supervised by an approved central, proprietary or remote station service or a local alarm which will give an audible signal at a constantly attended location.

SECTION 10. UNIQUE CIRCUMSTANCES REQUIRING AMENDMENTS TO THE UNIFORM FIRE CODE.

The amendments to the fire code made in SECTION 9 of this ordinance are necessary because of the following:

Unique geographic terrain within the jurisdiction, inadequate access, excessive grade and inadequate turning radii on both publicly dedicated and private streets, climatic conditions such as onshore and offshore winds which increase the danger and spread of fire and coastal fog which limits visibility, the existence of County and/or State Designated Major Highways(s) with high response call demands immediately adjacent to existing and proposed residential and commercial development, the utilization and maintenance of voluntary firefighting forces with longer alarm and response times, irregular and unpredictable manpower availability, the lack of sufficient fire flows in many areas of the jurisdiction, the authorization and construction of both commercial and residential of increasingly greater size throughout the jurisdiction so as to require a greater demand for fire prevention and suppression services within the jurisdiction, requirements for development throughout the jurisdiction consistent with Monterey County master planning documents.

SECTION 11. APPEALS.

Whenever the chief disapproves an application or refuses to grant a permit applied for, or when it is claimed that the provisions of the code do not apply or that the true intent and meaning of the code have been misconstrued or wrongly interpreted, the applicant may appeal from the decision of the chief to the Board of Directors of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District within 30 days from the date of the decision appealed.

SECTION 12. NEW MATERIALS, PROCESSES OR OCCUPANCIES WHICH MAY REQUIRE PERMITS.

The chairman of the governing body, the building official (only as necessary), the chief and the chief of the bureau of fire prevention shall act as a committee to determine and specify, after giving affected persons an opportunity to be heard, any new materials, processes or occupancies for which permits are required in addition to those now enumerated in said code. The chief of the bureau of fire prevention shall post such list in a conspicuous place in his office, and distribute copies thereof to interested persons.

SECTION 13. PENALTIES.

(a) Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Code or Standards hereby adopted or fail to comply therewith, or who shall violate or fail to comply with any order made thereunder, or any certificate or permit thereunder, and from which no appeal has been taken, or who shall fail to comply with such an order as affirmed or modified by the governing body or by a court of competent jurisdiction, within the time fixed herein, shall severally for each and every such violation and noncompliance, respectively, be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment for not more than 180 days or by both such fine and imprisonment. The imposition of one penalty for any violation shall not excuse the violation or permit it to continue; and all such persons shall be required to correct or remedy such violations or defects within a reasonable time; and when not otherwise specified, each ten days that prohibited conditions are maintained shall constitute a separate offense.

(b) The application of the above penalty shall not be held to prevent the enforced removal of prohibited conditions.

SECTION 14. ISSUANCE OF CITATIONS BY DESIGNATED OFFICES AND EMPLOYEES.

Officers and employees of the jurisdiction who have the discretionary duty to enforce a statute or ordinance may, pursuant to Section 13872 of the Health and Safety Code of the State of California and subject to the provisions hereof, arrest a person without a warrant whenever any such officer or employee has reasonable cause to believe that the person to be arrested has committed a misdemeanor in the officer's or employee's presence which he or she has the discretionary duty to enforce, and to issue a notice to appear in court, and to release such person on his or her written promise to appear in court, pursuant to Section 853.5 and 853.6 of the Penal Code of the State of California. Any person who willfully violates this written promise to appear in court as evidence by a signed citation is guilty of a misdemeanor pursuant to 853.7 of the Penal Code, regardless of the disposition of the charge upon which he was originally arrested. No officer or employee shall be allowed by his or her superior to exercise the arrest and citation authority herein conferred, unless such officer or employee is within a classification of jurisdiction officers and employees designated by resolution of the governing body to exercise such arrest and citation authority as to specified misdemeanor violations. The governing body shall establish and cause to be administered a special enforcement training program designed to instruct each officer or employee who will exercise such arrest and citation authority, regarding the provisions of the statutes and ordinances to be enforced, the evidentiary prerequisites to proper prosecution for violations thereof, the appropriate procedures for making arrests or otherwise prudently exercising such arrest and citation authority and the legal and practical ramifications and limitations attendant thereto. Any such officers and employees shall be appropriately instructed to deposit executed citations or notices within the jurisdiction office for filing with the court after review for legal sufficiency. Bail schedule for violations of the Uniform Fire Code will be set by resolution of the governing body.

SECTION 15. REPEAL OF CONFLICTING ORDINANCES.

All former ordinances or parts thereof conflicting or inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance or of the Code or Standards hereby adopted are hereby repealed.

SECTION 16. VALIDITY.

The Board of Directors hereby declares that should any section, paragraph, sentence or word of this ordinance or of the Code or Standards hereby adopted be declared for any reason to be invalid, it is the intent of the Board of Directors that it would have passed all other portions of this ordinance independent of the elimination herefrom of any such portion as may be declared invalid.

SECTION 17. DATE OF EFFECT.

This ordinance shall take effect and be in force thirty (30) days from the date of its passage, and before the expiration of fifteen (15) days after its passage it shall be published once, with the names of the members of the Board of Directors voting for and against the same in the Monterey Peninsula Herald, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Monterey, State of California.

SECTION 18. FILING WITH THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT.

The Secretary to the Board of Directors is hereby ordered and directed to certify a copy of this ordinance upon its passage and cause the same to be filed with the State Department of Housing and Community Development in Sacramento, California.

CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT ORDINANCE NO. 85-2

AN ORDINANCE FOR ADOPTION OF THE UNIFORM BUILDING CODE AND UNIFORM BUILDING CODE STANDARDS

An ordinance of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District regulating the erection, construction, enlargement, alteration, repair, moving, removal, demolition, conversion, occupancy, equipment, use, height, area and maintenance of all buildings or structures in the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District; providing for the issuance of permits and collection of fees thereof and providing penalties for the violation thereof; repealing Ordinance No. 80-4 of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District and all other ordinances and parts of the ordinances in conflict therewith.

The Board of Directors of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District does ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. That certain documents, three (3) copies of which are on file in the office of the chief of the fire department and the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, being marked and designated as "Uniform Building Code," including all appendices, 1982 edition, and the "Uniform Building Code Standards," 1982 edition, published by the International Conference of Building Officials, be and the same is hereby adopted as the code of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District for regulating the erection, construction, enlargement, alteration, repair, moving, removal, demolition, conversion, occupancy, equipment, use, height, area and maintenance of all buildings or structures in the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District providing for issuance of permits and collection of fees thereof; and each and all of the regulations, provisions, conditions and terms of such "Uniform Building Code," 1982 edition, and the "Uniform Building Code Standards," 1982 edition, published by the International Conference of Building Officials, on file in the office of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District are hereby referred to, adopted and made a part hereof as if fully set out in this ordinance.

SECTION 2. That Ordinance No. 80-4 of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District entitled "An Ordinance for Adoption of the Uniform Building Code and Uniform Building Code Standards," 1979 edition, and all other ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

SECTION 3. That the effective date for the latest version of the code adopted by this ordinance within the jurisdiction shall be one year from the date of its first publication by the organization publishing the same, unless by ordinance enacted within the year the governing body otherwise provides. The jurisdiction office shall maintain on file in the official records the edition of the code currently in effect at all times.

SECTION 4. That the Uniform Building Code is amended and changed in the following respects:

(A) Section 3202(b) is amended as follows:

1. In high or extreme fire hazard areas, as defined by the California Department of Forestry, roof construction shall be of fire-retardant materials as defined in Section 3203(e) 1-10, excluding 3203(e) 11, or as approved by the fire chief. This shall apply to all new construction as well as replacement of existing roofs when such replacement affects more than 25 percent of the existing roof. Vegetation removal will not be allowed as a means of removing high or extreme fire hazard designation from an entire parcel.

(B) Section 3802, paragraphs a, b, c, d, e, f, and g, are amended as follows:

1. WHERE REQUIRED. In addition to the requirements of the Uniform Building Code, Chapter 38, an automatic fire extinguishing system shall be installed in all buildings or structures, except agricultural buildings which shall be exempt, including residential structures, hereafter constructed or moved into the district, regardless of area separations or type of construction when such buildings or structures are:

(a) Three (3) or more stories in height, including basements, garages, cellars, and mezzanines, or;

(b) More than thirty (30) feet above grade at any point, or;

(c) Five thousand (5,000) square feet or more of gross floor area. Contiguous buildings or structures such as shopping centers shall be considered as one building when internally linked by common walls. Buildings subsequently constructed contiguous to other buildings or structures using common walls shall be considered one building requiring compliance of both buildings when exceeding 4,999 square feet. Type V buildings or structures separated by less than ten (10) feet shall be considered as one building or structure, or;

(d) Parking garages five thousand (5,000) square feet or more in floor area, or;

(e) Bowling alleys, or;

(f) Drinking or dining establishments four thousand (4,000) square feet or more in floor area, or;

(g) Providing an occupant load of fifty (50) or more above the first floor, or;

(h) A Group A occupancy having a stage or enclosed platform or having more than one thousand five hundred (1,500) square feet in a basement.

2. Installation, approval, and maintenance shall be in compliance with the National Fire Protection Association Standards #13, #13A, #13D, and/or Uniform Building Code Standards 38-1 and 38-2, whichever may be applicable and the editions of which shall be determined by the chief.

3. Automatic fire extinguishing systems shall be installed and maintained at the owner's expense.

4. Where access for fire apparatus and equipment is unduly difficult to any building or structure not otherwise required to be protected by an automatic fire extinguishing system the installation of an automatic fire extinguishing system shall be required.

5. Where an existing building or structure is not protected by an automatic fire extinguishing system but would otherwise be required to be protected if built as a new building its use will be allowed to continue until such time any structural change takes place which modifies, alters, or affects any bearing wall or similar structure assembly at which time it shall be made to conform to the provisions of this code. This shall not apply to single or two-family dwellings.

(C) Section 3803 is amended to read:

When serving more than 50 sprinklers, automatic sprinkler systems shall be supervised by an approved central, proprietary or remote station service or a local alarm which will give an audible signal at a constantly attended location.

SECTION 5. That the amendments to the building code made in SECTION 4 of this ordinance are necessary because of the following:

Unique geographic terrain within the jurisdiction, inadequate access, excessive grade and inadequate turning radii on both publicly dedicated and private streets, climactic conditions such as onshore and offshore winds which increase the danger and spread of fire and coastal fog which limits visibility, the existence of County and/or State Designated Major Highway(s) with high response call demands immediately adjacent to existing and proposed residential and commercial development, the utilization and maintenance of voluntary firefighting forces with longer alarm and response times, irregular and unpredictable manpower availability, the lack of sufficient fire flows in many areas of the jurisdiction, the authorization and construction of both commercial and residential of increasingly greater size throughout the jurisdiction so as to require a greater demand for fire prevention and suppression services with the jurisdiction, requirements for development throughout the jurisdiction consistent with Monterey County master planning documents.

SECTION 6. That the Secretary of the Board of Directors shall certify to the adoption of this ordinance and cause the same to be published.

SECTION 7. That if any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance is, for any reason, held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance.
